CHAMPION EGAN DEFEATED BY BERT M'KINNIE

St. Louis Golfer Outplayed the National Champion and Winner of Many Trophies in Qualifying Round of Olympic Tournament.

EGAN DROVE BALL INTO WATER HAZARD AT 9TH HOLE

McKinnie Played Consistent Game and Champion Was Unable to Make Up His Bad Stroke, Losing by Two Points.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GLEN ECHO GOLF CLUB, St. Louis County, Sept. 19.—Burt McKinnie of the Glen Echo Club defeated National Champion H. Chandler Egan in the qualifying round of the Olympic Golf Tournament. McKinnie made the round in 86, Egan in 82. Play finished at 1:15 o'clock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

GLEN ECHO CLUB, ST. LOUIS COUNTY, Mo., Sept. 19.—The first half qualifying round of the Olympic golf championship tournament was begun on the Glen Echo Country Club links Monday morning under unfavorable conditions.

The heavy rain of Sunday night made the course wet and soggy in spots.

Seventy-five players from all parts of the country participated in the first half which started at 8:30 o'clock. The contestants played thirty-six holes or two rounds of the links at medal play, which signifies that strokes not holes won count.

The 32 lowest scores qualify their holders to compete in the match play competing for the championship. Raymer Havemeyer of New York, son of Havemeyer the sugar king, and W. A. Hersey of the Normandie Club of this city were the first pair to start out on the links.

They left tee No. 1 at 8:30 o'clock and finished shortly after 11 o'clock.

Havemeyer made the best score of the two. He covered the 36 holes in 94 strokes, while Hersey made it in 101 strokes.

After the arrival of the first play the remainder of the players began to make their appearance at the finish at about 10 minutes' intervals, while they started off five minutes apart. Burt P. McKinnie of the Normandie Park club, golf champion of St. Louis, and Howard Chandler Egan of the Exmoor Country Club of Chicago, 1904 golf champion of the United States, began play at 10:30 o'clock.

This plan was followed around the course by 50 golf enthusiasts, who were well repaid for their long jaunt by witnessing some excellent golf. At the end of the first nine holes McKinnie was leading by a score of 41 strokes, against Egan's 43.

The St. Louis man kept on even terms with the national champion in the first four holes and took the lead at the end of the fifth. The score at this point was McKinnie 24 and Egan 25. McKinnie maintained this lead of one stroke until hole number 8 was reached, where Egan evened matters. The score of the 8 holes stood 38 strokes for each player.

In the ninth hole the ball must be driven over a body of water 25 yards wide, and it was here that Egan allowed McKinnie to assume a lead of two strokes.

Egan, who had heretofore been making long straight drives, went to pieces by failing to drive the ball across the pond. He seemed to take a sure aim, but his swing was too short and in consequence the ball fell in about five feet from the opposite shore. He was then allowed to drive another ball at a distance of 10 feet from the lake's edge. The ball by falling into water cost Egan one stroke. McKinnie shot the ball from tee No. 9 to hole No. 9 in three strokes, while Egan made it in four strokes, thus giving the local man an advantage of two strokes. McKinnie played in excellent form. His drives were long, although a trifle high. In putting the ball he was not as strong as his opponent.

Friends of Egan said that their player was a bit off form. This might have been the case, but McKinnie was playing a great game.

Following are the scores of the players as they finished: L. J. Hazleton, 99; E. M. Davis, 84; A. C. Vicor, 92; Dr. N. F. Shaw, 107; C. E. Smoot, 91; S. J. Harbough, 111; C. L. Hunter, 90; J. J. Howard, 100; R. E. Hunter, 87; C. B. Cory, 94; A. W. Austin, Toronto, 117; C. Potter, 92; Stuart Stickney, 83; W. K. Wood, Homewood, 84; J. B. Rahm, 93; C. W. Scuder, 90; R. McKittrick, 81; Ned Cummings, 88; A. T. Watson, 99; W. W. Burton, 94; Arthur Stickney, 84; Mason Phelps, 86; Walter E. Egan, 80; Fred Sample, 89; W. T. Withers, 108; D. P. Cadwallader, 88; B. C. Edmunds, 101; Allan Lard, 93; H. Potter, 87; H. W. Fraser, 90; H. C. Sumney, 92; E. M. Gane, 114; F. C. Newton, 80; W. P. Smith, 93; C. Willard, 97; A. D. Hussey, 93; O. W. Jones, 93; Jesse Carleton, 92; Sam T. Price, 83; W. A. Hersley, 101; Harold Weber, 83; J. S. Brandt, 97; R. Havemeyer, 94; D. E. Sawyer, 90.

W. Egan of the Exmoor County Club, cousin of H. Chandler, has a score of 80, which thus far is the best. Stuart Stickney and Ralph McKittrick of St. Louis come next, with a score of 81.

MAN FATALLY SHOT BEFORE STREET CROWD

Tragic Scene Within a Few Yards of the Crawford Theater in Sight of Two Hundred Persons.

The man killed was identified as Frank Shields, address not learned by the police.

A man was shot and probably mortally injured by another man within a few yards of the Crawford Theater at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Two hundred persons were in front of the theater when the shooting occurred.

The injured man was carried to the steps leading up to the entrance of the St. Louis Law School.

Fifteen minutes later the police arrested a man by the name of John Beck, a blacksmith, living at 1530 Washington avenue, in connection with the shooting. Beck declared he had not been on Locust street during the day.

It was said that the man killed was an innocent bystander; that the bullet was intended for another man.

Eyewitnesses say the shooting resulted from a dispute over registration, a precinct registration place being located near by at Fourteenth and Locust streets.

Two men, it is said, were seen leaving the booth. Angry words passed between them and a few minutes afterward, while both were close to the theater crowd, the shooting occurred.

The wounded man was conveyed in an ambulance to the City Dispensary.

"SOPUS" FLAGMAN IS DEAD

ESOPUS, N. Y., Sept. 19.—The flag at Rosemount will be half-masted as a tribute to George Bedford, who has been flagman for the West Shore road here for eight years.

Bedford died suddenly today. He was an admirer of Judge Parker who never went to the station without paying a visit to the flag station.

WEATHER TO TAKE ANOTHER WHIRL

Acrobatic Feats of Temperature Not Yet Exhausted, Says Forecaster of Local Bureau.

St. Louis has experienced many kinds of weather in the past 48 hours, and from present indications the lightning change acts will continue for another 36 hours.

Up in the top of the Chemical building Weather Forecaster Bowie, reinforced by Edward H. Ridgway, observer at Pittsburg, Pa., tells what has taken place in the past, and gives out what is looked for during the next day and a half. According to Mr. Bowie, the indications justify the following forecast:

"Showers and thunderstorms tonight, followed by fair weather Tuesday. Cooler."

The temperature will be moderate for today, but there is not one bit of warm weather pointed toward St. Louis, according to the weather map. There will be a change within 36 hours for the better—or is it for the worse—anyway it will be cooler.

Sunday started in hot and sultry, but all the time the cool wave was slipping down from the Northwest. It worked along slowly and quietly until it reached this city, when it suddenly broke forth in a storm. It had been so long since anything but fair weather that the storm was deemed a severe one, yet the official instruments show that the maximum velocity of the wind was only 30 miles, from the southwest.

The thermometer reached 88, and there was little breeze. The sun was shining and the day was really hotter than the thermometer showed. Just after noon the temperature took a sudden change, clouds sprang out from somewhere, the wind began to blow and big drops of rain soon followed. Within a few minutes the temperature had dropped to 64 degrees, about which point it hovered the remainder of the day and night.

The thunderstorm was purely local to the central region. St. Louis was right between the cold wave, which was moving from the Northwest, and the warm wave from the south. A mixture of the two currents of air caused the sudden change and the thunderstorm.

The total rainfall here Sunday was 1.38 inches. A little farther north there was more rain. Keokuk, Io., reporting three inches. At Springfield, Ill., the fall was about the same as in St. Louis.

Threatening weather about St. Louis is due to continue at least 36 hours, though fair weather is looked for by Tuesday afternoon. It will be no warmer, from any present indication.

PROTESTOR GOT MONEY BACK.

B. C. Brown of Demopolis, Ala., has reported to the police the loss of $50, which he says was grabbed from him on the steamer City of Providence. Brown said he was playing "pin wheel" and that when he produced a $100 bill it was snatched from him by a man.

When he reported the matter to the captain, he said, $50 was returned to him.

WISE MEN OF THE WORLD AT WORLD'S FAIR

Solomon and Socrates Could Get Many Valuable Tips by Attending Congress of Arts and Sciences, to Which Savants Are Flocking.

ENTERTAINERS WILL GAIN WISDOM OVER TEA CUPS

Sessions Will Continue During Entire Week, and Every Subject From Protozoa to Quadratic Surds Will Be Subject of Learned Debate.

Be careful what you say this week;
The wise men are about.
Just listen carefully. Don't speak,
Lest they may find you out.

The wisdom of all the world is centered in St. Louis this week.

The International Congress of Arts and Sciences is in session at the World's Fair.

Never before in all the history of the world have so many eminent authorities upon scientific and kindred subjects been gathered together in one place as will be here this week.

Experts upon everything between the floor of the sea and the roof of the blue dome are coming into St. Louis upon every train. They are easily the most learned body the World's Fair his entertained, and something like the whole sum of human knowledge will be here by Tuesday night.

Solomon, as wise as he was, would run his automobile along a back stret in St. Louis this week, and the learned Hypatia would hardly make bold to come out of the school yard.

The opening session of the congress was held Monday afternoon in Festival Hall, commencing at 3 o'clock.

Howard J. Rogers, director of congresses, called the delegates to order. He was followed by President Francis and Gov. Dockery, who welcomed the delegates.

A short speech was made by Prof. Wilhelm Waldeyer, honorary vice-president of the congress for Germany, who discussed the origin and purposes of the Congress.

The introductory address on behalf of the delegates delivered by President Simon Newcomb.

The great universities and educational institutions of the world have contributed to the scientific congress to be held at the World's Fair this week, and the American contingent, big and notable as it is, is quite overshadowed and outnumbered by the scientists who have come from abroad.

Some of the most notable scientists reached the city as early as last Saturday. Others came in Sunday, and still others Monday morning. Two of the prominent men who will be here not later than Tuesday, are Lieut. Robert E. Peary, Arctic explorer, and the Right Honorable James Bryce, M. P., perhaps the world's highest authority on national administration.

Science has never had any such rendezvous as the World's Fair is to be this week. It doesn't matter how large or how small the science may be, it will be represented, and by men who are best informed in it.

All of the great scientific authorities of America will attend. Some of these will come in such dignity of introduction that we will not readily identify them, as, for instance, Prof. David Starr Jordan of the Leland Stanford University, who comes as the speaker in the department of utilitarian sciences, and whose specialty, as we all know well enough, is fish; and Rear Admiral Charles D. Sigsbee of the United States navy, who comes as chairman in the department of oceonography, popularly known as what's what on the heaving sea.

Austria has sent no less a personage than a field marshal—Gustav Ratzenhofer—to represent her in the science of social structure.

The Institute of France, the University of Heidelberg, the University of Berlin, the Paris Academy of Sciences, the University of Leipzig, the University of Tokio, all the great universities and scientific institutions of America, and hundreds of foreign educational founts have representatives here.

Few names well known to present day scientific work are missing from the list of speakers. The Prince of Monaco, the foremost authority upon life in the deep sea, was expected, but he has not appeared, and it is feared he will not be present.

The scientists are the guests of the people of St. Louis and the greater portion of them are at the homes of notable St. Louisans. Scores of the fine homes of the West End are entertaining from one to four of the eminent visitors, and there is real scientific dialogue over the breakfast food in St. Louis homes this week.

Sir William Ramsay, professor of chemistry in the University of London, accompanied by 200 other chemists of London, Paris and Vienna, arrived in St. Louis Monday morning. Pro. Ramsay achieved international eminence a few years ago by the discovery of four new principals in air—argen, xenon, helium and metargon. The party was met in New York by Dr. E. C. Love, C. P. Zabrinske and Prof. M. T. Bogard, who accompanied the chemists to St. Louis, stopping at several cities to study the application of chemistry in various industries.

MAN AND GIRL DIE TOGETHER

Write That "World Is Cruel," and Turn on Gas in Woman's Room.

YORK, Pa., Sept. 19.—Michael Schall, head of the Keystone Foundry Machine Co. of this city, and Miss Nettie Gatmatt, also of York, were found dead in the young woman's apartments here today.

Returning from a visit they wrote notes in which they complained of the cruel world, sat down without removing their clothing and turned on the gas.

Both had been suffering from nervous affections, and to this is attributed the tragedy. Both were well connected socially.

WAR STORIES TOLD BY EYEWITNESSES

Incidents of Heroism at the Front and an Analysis of the Fighting Qualities of Japanese and Russian Soldiers.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

WITH THE FIRST JAPANESE ARMY, TIEN SHI TIEN, Manchuria, Aug. 12.—The lessons of the campaign are a text constantly before the eyes of the military observers with this army. They have made no revolutionary discoveries thus far. Indeed, the chief lesson has been the overshadowing importance of that complete preparation which has made every cog of every wheel for the greater machine slide quietly into its groove at the appointed minute and the attention to details for lack of which the servants of the Czar are wasting so much brave food for powder.

The work of the Russian artillery early on July 31 commanded the highest praise from every one. It was in strong contrast to the showing made at the Yalu, and was in every respect a credit to that arm of the Russian service. Their gun positions were selected by engineers who appreciated the possibilities of the country as they had failed to do at the Yalu.

RUSSIANS HAD VANTAGE.

The contour of the hills which push forward into the valley on both sides of Taowan afforded a line of defense, which, speaking roughly, extended nearly in a semicircle. Most of the Russian guns looked down into the valley, and also commanded the lower ranges of the hills beyond it, where the seven Japanese batteries must find cover, while they presented to the enemy only skyline targets difficult to gauge.

GUNNERS STOOD GROUND.

Consequently they gave the Japanese artillery a hard day of it, and compelled the batteries with the Japanese left division attempting to flank the Russian right, to shift their ground repeatedly to avoid the fierce and accurate fire poured upon them wherever they opened. Moreover the bravery of the Russian gunners was beyond all praise. On riding over the battle ground afterwards it was seen that although the Japanese shells had hardly been able to reach those Russian guns on the high peak behind Taowan, the other batteries had endured a perfect hailstorm of shrapnel which were under foot everywhere, while common shell had torn gaps over every few feet of ground about the guns.

Many statements have appeared in European newspapers about the superiority of Japanese guns, but their work so far has illustrated the western aphorpism that "success is not holding a good hand, but in playing a poor hand well."

It is conceded by the experts who have seen their work in the field, that the Russian guns are better than the Japanese, and that the ratio to insure equality should be about six Japanese guns against four Russian.

But the showing made by the Russian infantry leaves much to be explained. If their trenches had been held by marksmen like the Boers, there would have been no question of the Japanese reaching them without heavy loss, if at all. They were dug in splendid position on the sides and the summits of hills and approaches across the valley and up the hillsides had little cover except patches of corn.

Yet the Russian defense was either remarkably weak or only a demonstration, because the Japanese of the central division hit by their fire numbered only a score or two.

Moreover, there was the same blunders in management that marked the Yalu. The infantry in front of the Japanese left fought well and manouvered skillfully. But late on the night of battle, two Russian battalions apeared north of Taowan in front of the Japanese right flank and then retired without opening fire and the purpose of their movement remains a mystery.

OPEN SACRIFICE OF LIFE.

At Henling, where a thousand were cut to pieces and where, as at Hamatan, they had a brass band that left its instruments in the field, they gave one of the finest exhibitions of futile bravery witnessed during the war. They were marching in close column of fours under a destructive fire, and although men were cut down by squads, they never broke ranks nor retreated. The uselessness of the sacrifice was as eloquent as its courage and the credit for the former belonged to the officers.

The great number of casualties among the Russian officers, and particularly their generals, while no Japanese generals had been hit, is due largely to the different theories of generalship followed in the armies.

GENERALS WEAR SWORDS.

The generals of the Japanese are directors, while the Russian cling to the old Skobeloff tradition of a commander at the head of his men leading the fighting. From the Japanese lines we can see the white-coated Russian officers riding conspicuously before their troops, while from the Russian side it must be hard to discover the Japanese officers because their uniforms are so like those of the ranks and because Gen. Kuroki and the lesser generals usually are somewhere behind the fighting line managing their battle by telegraph and telephone.

Probably electricity has never played so great a part in warfare before as it does with the Japanese. Every general of brigade in the field is, like a modern ambassador, "at the end of a wire," which his divisional commander controls, and the generals of divisions are in touch by telegraph or telephone with the corps commander. The engineers run wires after the column with marvelous rapidity.

Firing is heard somewhere at the front; a detachment of engineers emerges from headquarters, pack ponies are carrying bundles of light bamboo, poles, while

REGISTRATION FACTS FOR ST. LOUIS VOTERS

WHEN TO REGISTER.

Registration places are open in every voting precinct in the city from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. today, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

WHERE TO REGISTER.

All registration this year is in precincts. NO CITY HALL REGISTRATION. If you don't know the number of your ward and precinct or the location of registration place, consult official map published in last Friday's Post-Dispatch or call up board of election commissioners, City Hall.

WHY TO REGISTER.

All voters, whether previously registered or not, must register during these four days or lose the right to vote at the presidential, state and city election this fall. Only certificate of sickness or absence from city on all four days will be accepted later as reasons for adding names to the roll.

HEAVY FIGHTING IS REPORTED NEAR MUKDEN

Russians, Conducting Important Reconnaissances, Are Opposed by Japanese Forces, Which Have Been Increased.

CZAR TO FORM SECOND ARMY OF MANCHURIA

Gen. Kuropatkin Will Be in Command of the Entire Force, but Without the Title of Commander-in-Chief.

News from the seat of war today contains nothing to show that the Japanese have yet begun to move in force.

There is no truth in the report emanating from the London Express that a battle is in progress at Mukden, but Gen. Kuropatkin reports that Gens. Rennenkampff and Samsonoff are conducting important reconnaisances, which have resulted in heavy fighting. The reconnaisances also showed an increase in the Japanese forces.

Emperor Nicholas has decided to form a second Manchuria army, to be composed of the corps now being sent to the far East. Kuropatkin, according to St. Petersburg advices, will become chief of both armies, but without the title of commander-in-chief, and Gen. Linevitch probably will command the second army.

pfv n,yn'h',wGfmd uoc ph Ep t.n,l W M

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept 19.—A telegram states that a large Russian force under Gens. Rennenkampff and Samsonoff were attacked while conducting important reconnaisances south of Mukden in the neighborhood of Yentia.

Their commands were surprised at the large force thrown against them, but resisted repeated assaults on the line and held their ground in spite of the heavy loss.

This is the first information to reach the war office that Gen. Rennenkampff had recovered from his recent wounds and assumed command of his division.

The reconnaissance developed that the Japanese forces had been heavily reinforced recently in the neighborhood of Yentai and Bainupuza.

It is now generally accepted here that the clashes between the outposts during the last few days was intended to cover the preparations for an advance of the Japanese army. The preliminary skirmish, in which the losses were light, extended at times for 20 miles.

The war office openly scouted the idea that the Japanese troops had recovered sufficiently from the recent battle to be able to engage in a second severe and costly engagement, as the Russians will fight desperately to hold Mukden.

Gen. Kuroki's whereabouts with his division of the invading army is causing some uneasiness, as it has been repeatedly announced that he was working his way around to cut off a possible retreat. If the war office has positive information as to his whereabouts it has not been disclosed.

PORT ARTHUR IS SUFFERING SEVERELY FROM LONG SIEGE.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—The Daily Telegraph's Chefoo correspondent, says:

Two Germans and a Cossack, who have arrived here from Port Arthur, assert that Gen. Kuropatkin told Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel that he must hold out until January, and they say that the garrison has ammunition for six months. This probably is greatly exaggerated.

Other refugees say that no fresh meat is left at Port Arthur, and that the garrison there is reduced to 20,000.

Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel has not allowed the publication of the Novi Krai since Sept. 5.

Boys as young as 13 years have been impressed for hospital work.

The destruction of the coast defense vessel Gremiashchi, by striking a mine, is confirmed.

SLEEPWALKER HURT BY FALL

Son of Assistant Health Commissioner Plunged From Window to the Ground.

Charles Francis, an inspector in the sanitary department, and son of Assistant Health Commissioner Charles W. Francis, is at the City Hospital in a critical condition as a result of a fall from the second story window of his home, 4234 West Bells place, to the ground, a distance of 20 feet. He is suffering from concussion of the brain, a broken leg, internal injuries and many bruises.

Relatives of Mr. Francis say he is accustomed to walk in his sleep, and it is believed that he fell from the window while thus walking.

Francis was found lying face downward on the sidewalk by George Miller.

After being restored to consciousness at the hospital, Mr. Francis said all he could remember was that he retired Saturday night, and that when he awoke he was in the hospital. In his delirium, he talked of an attack, but the suspicion that he had been assaulted was removed when he became conscious.

HOUSE WILL NOT BE ALLOWED TO "HOLD UP" CITY

Mayor Wells and President Phillips of the Board of Public Improvements Say They Will Prevent Extortionate Temporary Garbage Contract.

WOULD DEFEAT THE SCHEME OF DILATORY DELEGATES

Dumping of Garbage in River With Consent of United States Government Is Plan Suggested by Tenth Ward Residents.

"I do not wish to appear discourteous by anticipating the action or decision of the Municipal Assembly, but, if the pending garbage bill is not passed by the time the present contract expires, Nov. 14, I am confident that the Board of Public Improvements will be able to handle the matter to the entire satisfaction of the people of St. Louis," said Mayor Wells to the Post-Dispatch Monday.

The present contract for the reduction of the city's garbage is held by the St. Louis Sanitary Co., of which Edward Butler, political boss and veteran garbage contractor, is one of the moving spirits. The sum annually paid by the city to the sanitary company is $126,000, double the amount paid on the contract with the sanitary company prior to 1901.

The House of Delegates, under the leadership of Delegate John McCarthy of the Twenty-third ward, a former employe of Butler, has failed to take action on the new garbage bill, which was referred to the sanitary committee of the house two months ago. The city charter requires that all bills be reported from committees within 40 days, but this provision the sanitary committee, of which Delegate J. G. Teschemacher of the Twenty-fourth ward is chairman, ignored.

The scheme of certain delegates to compel the city to make a costly emergency contract with the sanitary company and further to strengthen that corporation's monopoly on the garbage contract has been revealed by inaction and open hostility to the new bill, which provides for the reduction of garbage at a point outside the city.

"This garbage problem is one which has received the earnest attention of the city authorities," said the mayor.

"It is not an easy one, as those who have not dealt with it may imagine. The Board of Public Improvements has spent considerable time looking into the garbage question.

"Until the assembly has acted definitely I should not care to go into the details of the subject."

Says City Will Not Be "Held Up."

President Hiram Phillips of the Board of Public Improvements made this statement:

"No matter what the Municipal Assembly does with the garbage bill, the board of public improvements will see that the city is not held up.'

"The garbage question has been receiving constant and careful attention, and the city's interests will be protected."

At a meeting of the members of the Tenth Ward Improvement Association Sunday the dilatory tactics of the House of Delegates with regard to the garbage bill were roundly condemned. Opinion was general that the House is fully determined to kill the bill and it was suggested that steps be taken to provide means for disposal of the garbage, without resort to temporary contract with the St. Louis Sanitary Co. It was decided, after some discussion, to ask the city to dump garbage into the Mississippi.

A committee composed of H. C. Koenig, Chirstian Brinkop, John T. Noide, John Hahn and Judge T. F. W. Zimmermann was appointed to confer with Mayor Wells, the board of public improvements and Congressman Bartholdt regarding this plan. Mr. Bartholdt's opinion was desired because of possible objections on the part of the United States government.

Only Government Can Give Sanction.

Mr. Phillips, in reference to the plan outlined by the South St. Louis organization, stated that permission to dump garbage into the river could be obtained only from the federal government.

"The secretary of war," said he, "has complete jurisdiction over all rivers, and under an act passed in 1898 his authority was extended to cover the right of municipalities to use the rivers for the disposal of garbage.

"The city ceased this plan several years ago, but not by any prohibition of the war department. In fact, something like 145,000 pounds of waste matter, gathered in cleaning the streets, was dumped into the river last year."

"Mayor Wells, more than any other official," said Harbor Commissioner Joseph P. Whyte, "has been concerned with this garbage question. He has studied it thoroughly, and I am sure he has taken every precaution within his power to protect the city's interest. The Board of Public Improvements sent the pending ordinance to the Municipal Assembly after giving the subject of garbage reduction thorough consideration.

"Committees were appointed in both branches of the assembly to act in concert with a committee of the Board of Public Improvements to investigate the best means of settling the garbage question. The opinion of this joint committee was unanimous and is embodied in the garbage bill now being held in the sanitary committee of the House of Delegates.

"But while the ordinance has passed Improvements to the legislative department, the board has not failed to make preparations to meet any emergency which the defeat of the ordinance may create."

Business Men's League Interested.

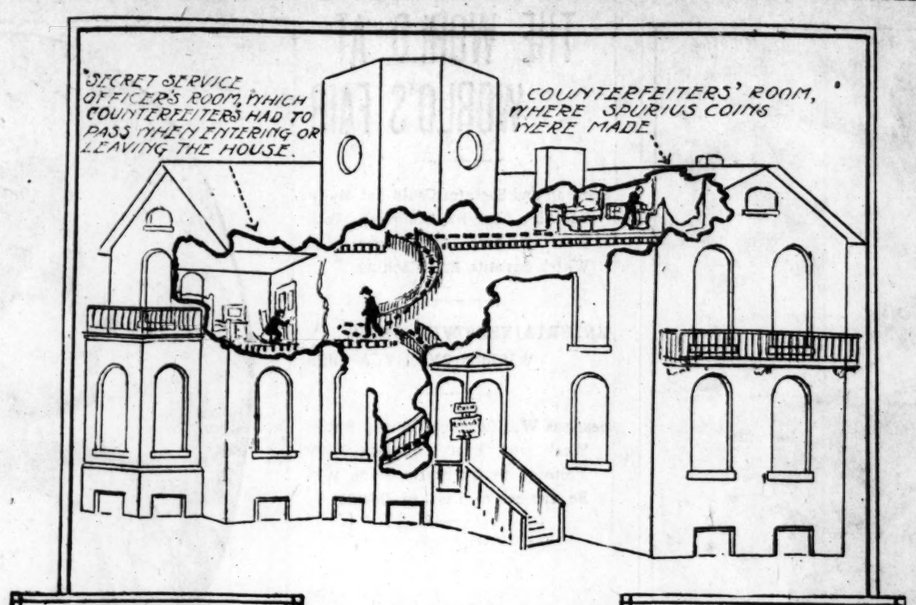

The legislative committee of the Business Men's League held a meeting last Friday to consider action on the garbage bill.

No decision was reached, and another meeting will be held Tuesday afternoon. President Phillips of the Board of Public Improvements was among those before the committee. Mr. Phillips explained at length the features of the bill, the circumstances under which it was drafted by the Board of Public Improvements and the pressing necessity for its passage before the [illegible] expires."

FATHER AND SON TOGETHER WAIT TRIAL ON COUNTERFEITING CHARGE

James N. Rice and 17-Year-Old Boy Held by Federal Authorities in St. Louis, Who Say They Made Bogus Dollars.

CONFESSED COUNTERFEITER, HIS SON, AND DIAGRAM OF CHOUTEAU AVENUE HOUSE WHERE THEY WERE ARRESTED

JAMES N. RICE SR.

JAMES N. RICE JR.

Stories of man's weakness, of the influence of past criminal acts over a man's future life and of the probably blighted life of a boy through his associations with his father, are included in the story of James N. Rice and his 16-year-old son, James, who are held prisoners by the Federal authorities in St. Louis to answer to a charge of making counterfeit dollars.

That a boy is compelled to see only that part of the world which is revealed between the prison bars will ever excite the sympathies of those who visit him.

Secret service men, who deal with criminals each day and hear pathetic stories by the thousands, become to some degree hardened to the ways and the pleadings of criminals. They see in this case nothing to excite sympathy. They tell you there has been brought to justice a man whose operations as a maker of counterfeit money equal in degree of danger to the country at large those of any man with whom the department has ever had to deal.

They declare the senior Rice to be one of the most successful counterfeiters ever known.

Aside from its weight the dolar made by Rice was an exact counterpart of that issued from the government mints.

There was not a flaw in the milling.

The color was perfect.

It gave the proper response to the touch.

The maker—for the elder Rice admits his guilt—is a shrewd man. The officers call him a "smooth criminal."

For days he eluded all efforts of the secret service men to keep within sight of him, although he had no intimation that he was being pursued by the government's officers. However, he was always on the alert. He covered his tracks, realizing that the best way to escape detection was to leave no trail. It is entirely probable that had he been followed by any other organization than the secret service he would have remained a free man much longer.

The workings of the secret service—the close attention paid to every case—were never better shown than in this instance. From the moment the officers became convinced Rice was making counterfeit coins there was always a secret service agent almost at his very elbow, except at such times as he could evade his "shadow" for a few minutes. But invariably was the clew picked up quickly. When he was asleep a sleuth guarded the house. When he was at work on the "queer" a secret service man was in the same house with him. When he was on the street, one walked almost at his side. His every movement was watched. Every person to whom he talked was shadowed.

Aside from the direct story of his crime the Rice case shows conclusively the futility of attempts of men who have disobeyed the federal laws to escape detection and capture. Never yet has a counterfeiter escaped.

It was nearly four years ago in Chicago that the first of the Rice counterfeiting operations began. Previous to that time Rice had been a hard-working machinist without thought of an "easy" living. It had never occurred to him to do aught against the laws of his country.

But hard work was tiresome. After many years of it, the machinist, who had often read of the arrest and conviction of men for making counterfeit coins, began to plan a mint of his own. There was not sufficient money in daily toil. He believed he saw where others had made the errors which caused their arrest.

He would make no errors. He would escape detection.

A little study, a few experiments, and James N. Rice was a counterfeiter.

Rice made a few coins which he placed in circulation. He had one of the first of a counterfeiter's experiences. The secret service men "struck his trail."

He was arrested and in federal court admitted his guilt, pleaded for leniency on account of his family and was given a light sentence, which he served in the penitentiary and was released in February, 1903.

Upon his return home there was a pathetic scene enacted in the little home shut out from the view of an inquisitive world. Then Rice promised his wife that he would never again make counterfeit coins or do anything which would make him amenable to the laws.

For more than a year he refrained from the crime. But two years in prison made him a changed man. He no longer worked as a machinist. He sold patent medicines and conducted a bicycle repair shop in Chicago.

A few months ago he came to St. Louis with his wife and family. Unknown to his wife, who was praying that he might keep to the narrow path, he rented a room in a rooming house at 908 Chouteau avenue and again began the manufacture of the coins.

Obtaining the finest grade of plaster of paris, he made his molds, using new and perfect 1900 dollars. He was soon ready for business.

In the meantime his son James had become involved in a quarrel in the neighborhood in which the family lived and the father took him to the Chouteau avenue room, telling Mrs. Rice he was going to send the boy to Pennsylvania. Both he and the boy now say that was the father's intention and that he was only waiting until he should realize enough money to pay the expenses of the journey.

The boy was sent after the metal and other materials used in the manufacture of the coins. The father and the boy both say the younger Rice did not know for what purpose the materials were to be used.

Young Rice says that every day his father would send him away from the house, telling him to go swimming. He was glad to go, he says. The father explains that it was only while his son was away from the room that he made the coins.

The secret service operators were soon on the trail. Lawrence Richey, one of the most successful shadow men in the service, was sent to the Chouteau avenue house. Representing himself to be a World's Fair visitor from New York, he rented a room and awaited developments.

He was fortunate in the room to which he was assigned, being given a room with windows on three sides and a door looking directly toward the stairway down which Rice and his son were compelled to descend to reach the street. Leaving the door slightly ajar or looking through the keyhole, Richey could see every movement the men made except when they were in the room.

The afternoon of Sept. 2, Richey saw Rice leave the house with a package. Following him, the secret service man saw him deposit the package in a vacant lot a few blocks away. The package was opened and was found to contain broken pieces of plaster of paris. The secret service men recognized it as broken molds.

Richey informed Col. John E. Murphy of the situation, and a raid was planned for the next day.

Saturday at noon, Sept. 3, Col. Murphy, accompanied by Connell and Gammon, joined Richey at the Chouteau avenue house. One of Rice's sons left the room with the door open to get some beer. While he was gone the secret service men entered the room and arrested Rice and his son James. The other son, Andrew, was arrested when he returned, but he was released after preliminary examination upon the statement of the secret service men that there was no evidence against him.

When told he was arrested Rice is said to have remarked:

"O, you're Murphy, are you? Well, it's all up with me. You've got the goods on me. The stuff's in that closet, but the boys are not guilty."

He still protests the innocence of his son, but the secret service men say they have the evidence pointing to the fact that they found 20 of the counterfeit coins in the boy's pocket at the time of the arrest.

Once before Rice stood in federal court and pleaded for mercy.

Once again will he cry with uplifted hands, "Mercy, for my family's sake."

He hopes his pleadings will be heard, but fears that the heart of the judge will feel only for the boy, and that the results will be disastrous to the father.

THREE HURT IN COLLAPSE OF BUILDING

Falling Walls Bury Workmen Engaged in Razing Three-Story Brick Structure, Landmark at Third and St. Charles Streets.

ONE HANGS BY FOOT AND IS SAVED FROM DEATH

Crash Comes Without Warning—Supports Under Building Said to Have Been Removed Before the Accident Occurred.

As the result of the sudden collapse of an old three-story brick building Sunday afternoon in Charles street, near Third street, three workmen were buried beneath a 10-foot pile of brick and timbers and one lies at the City Hospital with a fractured skull, dangerously injured.

The building was formerly occupied by the J. H. Crane Furniture Co., and was an old landmark.

The workmen injured are:

Charles Loesch, aged 27, of 3521 South Second street, whose skull was fractured, and who was injured internally; John Bradley, aged 44, of 1618 Glasgow avenue, who received internal injuries and a scalp wound; Frank Eshmann, aged 24, of 3306 Salena street, who received bruises and scratches about the body.

The three men had been engaged for several weeks in tearing down the old building to make room for a modern structure and were working on the roof near the southwest corner when the wall collapsed.

They had no warning, but were hurled down the three stories to the ground amid the falling brick and timbers before they had a chance to save themselves. The collapse extended down to the second floor of the building, making a gap about 30 feet wide from which more than two tons of brick and mortar fell.

Loesch and Eshmann were dashed to the ground and rendered unconscious by being struck by falling brick.

The life of Bradley was probably saved by his being caught by the foot between a joist and a wooden chute, midway between the second and third floors. He was the first of the workmen to fall, and had he not been caught he would probably have been crushed beneath the pile of falling brick.

After hanging until he was nearly unconscious, and seeing his companions buried below him, Bradley was finally released by a falling brick, and fell to the heap under which Eshmann and Loesch lay.

Firemen of Engine Company No. 2 from across the street heard the crash when the building collapsed, and immediately set to work to uncover the buried workmen. Bradley was the first to be taken from the mass of wreckage. He was found to be seriously injured.

After a half hour's work the two other workmen were pulled from the pile of bricks and timber. Both were unconscious. Eshmann quickly revived and was taken to his home, while Loesch was found to be suffering from a fractured skull. He was taken to the City Hospital, where physicians say he may die.

The building was condemned some time ago by the building commissioner and the firm of L. A. Thomas Wrecking Co. was employed to raze the structure. The three men who were injured were experienced workmen.

It is said that the supports of the lower floors had been removed from the building before it collapsed, thus endangering the lives of the workmen.

JAPANESE AS MODEST AS THEY ARE BRAVE

coolies and carts follow them with coils of slender copper wire. The poles, which have pointed ends, are quickly planted, the wire spreads out as fast as men can uncoil it, and a field telephone is at work.

No evidences have been seen as the army advanced into the enemy's country that the Russians employ the telegraph extensively. There are no traces of wires or poles except the old Chinese line from Antung to Pekin.

The Russian generalship is more spectacular and perhaps inspires the soldiers with greater courage, but the Japanese is more business-like. These generals do not play to the galleries at all. The censorship which they enforce tends to deprive them of their just dues in reputation.

Often correspondents are forbidden to telegraph the names of the leaders in daring and important fights because the names might giv ethe enemy a clew to the identity and therefore to the strength and the characteristics of the organization opposing them.

Gen. Okawa gathered his troops in the fog of the early morning on the fourth of July and prevented the Russians from seizing the Motien Ling. He turned Keller's almost successful attack of the 17th into a disaster, and his soldiers from the Rocks above the Yushiting shot down a thousand Russians without any compensating damage to themselves.

He is a strategist and a fighter. In England or America he would be popular. But the newspapers which come to the camp fail to mention him. How unpopular a censorship that excludes exploitation of generals would be with certain other armies is appreciated by correspondents who have accompanied those armies.

KUROKI LIKE MOLTKE.

Gen. Kuroki is a quiet and unassuming gentleman, rather that Moltke type than the theatrical general who rides about exporting and cursing his men. His type is apparently the prevailing one in the Japanese service. Sometimes it appears that he has worked out his lan of battle so perfectly before the event that he can sit down confident of its fulfillment, and takes little further interest in the proceedings.

During the critical hours of July 31, when his infantry was advancing across the valley to charge the Russian entrenchments on the heights, he sat in the courtyard of a Chinese temple, chatting casually with members of his staff. A court painter could have made no battle picture there.

Gen. Kuroki's force partakes of his character. It might be described as the silent army.

RUSSIANS FIGHT TO MUSIC.

The Russians have their regimental bands which play at sunset hours and on the march and during battle, and their soldiers advance to the sound of the drum. They chant their evening hymn around the soup kettles and sometimes a roar of patriotic chorus rolls through the hills from the Russian campfires to the ears of Japanese pickets.

But in this campaign, although the infantry carry bugles by whose notes they march in peace times, I have never heard the sound of a trumpet near the front. No war songs are sung. The band of the Imperial guards has been with headquarters occasionally and the magnificent service, in honor of the dead at Pangwangcheng, was concluded with a ringing benediction of trumpets. But music has no part in the soldier's daily life. Enthusiasm is displayed to the ear only in moments of victory, but that weird and stirring cheer, "Banzai," with which they charge, is heard in battle.

BEER FIFTY MILES AWAY.

Nor is this a convivial army. The few camp followers whose presence near the front is sanctioned, sell cigarettes, fans, handkerchiefs, towels, soap, toothbrushes, writing paper and envelopes. The nearest shop where a bottle of Saki or beer can be bought is at Pangwangcheng, 50 miles to the rear, and that means that the officers get very little, and the soldiers none.

Tea, cigarettes and fans are the soldiers' luxuries, fishing, writing letters and reading newspapers their amusements. The field post carries an enormous amount of mail every day between Antung and the front. Riding about the camps one always sees hundreds of soldiers sitting cross-legged under the trees painting artistic epistles to relatives with brushes on rolls of thin paper.

The greatest indulgence of the officers is the big iron kettles for heating water for hot baths as well as to cook the company mess of rice. A few squares of straw matting to construct a bath house, a fire and an immense stone jar for a tub, spell comfort.

EACH MAN HAS A FAN.

Fans for soldiers seem an anomaly, particularly for soldiers so far removed from suspicion of effeminacy as the Japanese. Yesterday a battalion of infantry toiled past, perspiring through the sandy cornfields under an almost tropical sun and every man was plying a paper disk.

The fans and tea kettle dangling from saddles and from soldiers' packs have surprised some of the conservative European attaches. But they are the concession Japan's Europeanized army makes to old Japan, and since they contribute to content of the soldiers out of all proportion to their weight, there seems no valid argument against them.

Another souvenir of home life which the soldiers have brought into Manchuria is a fishing line in every knapsack. From the commanding general down to the humblest coolie who trots after his master's horse, they are disciples of the rod.

PATIENT AS FISHERMEN.

Seeing these mild-eyed boys sitting for hours by the banks of mountain streams waiting for a three-inch minnow to bite at an angle worm, it is hard to realize them as the same fighting man who storm rocky embankments under showers of shrapnel and bringing bask the huge Cossacks of awesome reputation, docile captives.

No description of the Japanese soldier would be just which failed to mention his courtesy and his honesty. Living in the midst of the army, displaying many luxuries which must be tempting to soldiers kept on a most economical basis, the correspondents leave their effects about the camps without fear for the safety of them. Nothing is stolen, not even tobacco or food. The same thing could hardly be said of other soldiers.

LADY MANAGERS MEET TOMORROW

Secretaryship May Be Added to Selection of Jurors as Topic of Discussion.

The Board of Lady Managers of the World's Fair will meet Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to select 15 women to serve as department jurors. That is the business officially announced to come before the board in telegrams sent today to the various members, and it is the cause for the special meeting. There is also a possibility that the disagreement over the secretaryship of the board may come up for consideration, although nothing has been heard from Miss Egan, who, it was reported a few days ago, hopes to resume her former position as secretary.

At the time of the selection of jurors for the World's Fair exhibits, the board presented a list of 84 names to the national commission. This was a larger number than the board was entitled to have, and after the national commission had selected the proper number, there were still several vacancies.

The board was then informed that it was entitled to 12 departmental jurors. The officers in St. Louis thought those remaining on the old list should be selected, but the national commission advised that a meeting of the board be called, in order that the proceeding be regular.

It is probable that many of the members will not be present. The members now in the city are Mrs. Daniel Manning, Mrs. Frederick M. Hanger, Mrs. Edward L. Ruchwalter, Mrs. William E. Coleman, Mrs. Finis P. Ernest, Mrs. William Andrews, Mrs. Mary Montgomery Phelps, Mrs. Helen Boice Hunsicker, Mrs. Belle L. Everest and Mrs. Annie McLean Moores.

Monday afternoon the Board of Lady Managers gave a reception to Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Thursday evening a reception will be given to the delegates to the Congress of Arts and Sciences. There are 535 delegates to the congress, and besides these many guests will be invited, making one of the largest receptions given by the ladies.

PARISH IS FIFTY YEARS OLD.

The golden jubilee of St. John of Nepomuk's Bohemian Catholic parish was celebrated Sunday by high mass and a parade of the children and members of the parish. Bishop Meerschaert of Oklahoma was celebrant at 10:30 o'clock and Archbishop Glennon was in the sanctuary. Very Rev. Mgr. Joseph Hessoun was also able to assist in the ceremony, after being deprived of attending service for some time by illness.

Rev. Father Fathmeyer of Iowa City, Ia., was deacon of the mass; Rev. Father Kohlbeck, O. S. B., of Chicago, subdeacon. The sermon was given by Rev. Father Chundelak of South Omaha, Neb. The church was filled to overflowing in honor of its fiftieth anniversary.

Awoke to See Burglar Leave.

L. N. Jock of 4033 North Grand avenue has reported to the police that his laundry at that address was burglarised early Sunday morning and $35 in money and a bundle of laundry were taken. The police have arrested John Carroll of 4033A North Grand avenue. The police say Carroll has confessed. Jock was asleep at the time of the burglary and awoke to see a man leaving the building through a window.

CHAMP GIVES UP DASH FOR THE POLE

Expedition to Relief of Anthony Fiala Fails—Leader Announces Ice Insurmountable.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

TROMSOE, Sept. 19.—A telegram has been received from W. S. Champ, leader of the expedition that started to the relief of the north pole expedition sent out by William Ziegler under Anthony Fiala, saying:

"I regret to report my failure to reach Franz Joseph land. The ice is insurmountable. The approaching winter and heavy frost have compelled me to abandon further effort."

Fiala left New York City in May, 1903, for Norway, where his ship, the America, was waiting. His plan was to go to Camp Ziegler, Alger Land, for winter quarters, and in the spring of this year attempt the dash for the pole.

BELLBOY ROBBED ASTORIA GUESTS

Jewel Thefts Charged to James Reilly Foot Up to at Least $22,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—An amazing series of robberies by which prominent patrons of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel have lost $22,000 within the last 60 days were made public through the return, under arrest, from Chicago of James Reilly, a bellboy formerly employed in the hotel.

A majority of the robberies were committed on July 30. On that day Prince Ponyatowski, a son-in-law of George Crocker, a Sea Francisco millionaire, lost jewels valued at $18,000; G. Feist of Virginia was robbed of a dress suit and two diamond pins valued at $700, and H. C. Davis, a guest of the hotel, reported the loss of a diamond stud worth $1000. Since then the robberies have become more numerous.

NOTED FOOTBALL PLAYER IN JAIL; WIFE AN EMBEZZLER

Harry Batchelder, Formerly of Yale, Sentenced to Six Months for Having Gambling Games in His Cigar Store in Reading, Pa.

MARRIAGE LAST MAY A ROMANCE OF THE GRIDIRON

Girl He Wedded Confesses to Taking $2500 From the Store Where She Was Employed Before Marrying the Hero of the Yale Team.

READING, Pa., Sept. 18.—H. S. Batchelder, the former noted football player of Yale, is now serving a six months sentence in jail for running gambling games in his cigar store. His wife, a bride of only a few months, has pleaded guilty to embezzling $2500 from a store. These are the developments of a runaway match only a short time ago.

Mrs. Batchelder was cashier and bookkeeper in a large store here for several years and enjoyed the confidence of her employers. Early in July a warrant was sworn out by Benjamin Berg, one of the firm, charging her with embezzlement. She entered $1000 bail for court. The embezzlement, it was alleged, was accomplished by Mrs. Batchelder keeping a duplicate bank book, which Mr. Berg accidentally found. He discovered that while both showed deposits on the same day, the amounts in one book were smaller than in the other. This aroused his suspicion and led him to believe that Mrs. Batchelder was keeping two books. She immediately made a full confession to him.

Batchelder and Miss Cassidy were married last May. He was a student in the Yale law school, class of 1906, a member of the football team at the college and lived in Waterbury, Conn. They became acquainted last year, it is said, at the Yale-Princeton game and last May they married in Atlantic City. At the Princeton game last fall, after Batchelder had crawled from the human pile, following a play, a tiny woman, eyes sparkling and waving a blue flag, was seen to rise on her chair in the grandstand, screaming the Yale cheer. It was Miss Cassidy. The big guard waved his hand to her and resumed play. Then came their first meeting, and he gave up his law studies for her. Not long after the football season ended Batchelder began to show signs of distress.

"I can't stand it any longer," he declared one day. "I'm off to Reading to stay." He came to this city soon after. His family was very much opposed to his marriage and it was to support himself and his bride that he opened a cigar store.

Batchelder's six months' sentence for allowing gambling in his cigar store came as a suprise to the public as well as to Batchelder. His father, a well-to-do resident of Waterbury, Conn., has been in Reading all week working earnestly in his son's behalf, and to him the fate of his son was a staggering blow.

After sentence the football hero greeted his father with an assuring smile that all would come out right, but the old man could not see it that way, and today he left for home greatly cast down. Everybody has liked Batchelder ever since he came to Reading. It would be in the power of the court to mitigate his sentence, and the suggestion was frequently made today that a monster petition in his behalf be presented to the judge, but the movement has not been started.

"I want to work," said Batchelder today, but there is nothing for him to do in prison. Under the laws of this state only 10 per cent of the inmates of a prison are allowed to work at employment in which they come in competition with free labor, and the probability is that Batchelder will be given nothing to do except prison chores.

Several months ago District Attorney Wagner, who is a church member, gave notice to the cigar store proprietors that they must stop gambling in their places. It was recognized as a prevailing evil, and Batchelder's prosecution followed because he did not stop it. It was for that reason that Presiding Judge Ermentrout said from the bench that Batchelder's case was not one of ordinary gambling, but one of "unmitigated gambling."

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1903.

Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my shins. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated I would be, neither have the sores ever broke out again, and some twelve years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so signally benefitted by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier. JOHN W. FUNDIS.
Care Schmulback Brewing Co.

Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread.

S. S. S. reaches these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, builds up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore write us and our physicians will advise without charge. Book on the Blood and its diseases sent free.

IRISH FREEDOM IS REDMOND'S THEME

Noted Leader, Addressing Large Crowd at Coliseum, Tells of Work Accomplished in Recent Years.

Several thousand persons who are sympathizers with the cause of Irish freedom, including those who originally came from the Emerald Isle, crowded the Coliseum at 18th and Olive streets Sunday night to greet John E. Redmond, M. P., the noted Irish leader, to be stirred by his address, and to add to the fund which is being raised to help wage the fight for Irish home rule.

In all $3,000 was raised Sunday night, some of the contributions being as high as $200, while others were for $100, $50, $25 and $10.

Edward Devoy, president of the United Irish League, under the auspices of which the meeting was held, introduced as the chairman of the evening Archbishop Glennon, who made the opening address. The archbishop announced himself in favor of liberal contributions to the fund being raised for a purpose with which he said all present were in hearty sympathy.

Archbishop Glennon declared the people of Ireland must own their own land, for, said he, "The nation which does not own its own land has no future, no stability, no hope."

He also said a Catholic university must be established in Ireland for the reason that at the present time the people there cannot educate their children without having them surrounded with a Protestant influence.

In connection with Irish home government he said, "Peace will be brought to Ireland by the simple principle of letting the people take care of their own affairs. Give Ireland a place among the nations and let her work out her own history. There will be no entangling alliances with other countries."

John E. Redmond was then introduced. He dealt principally with what had been accomplished by the Irish members of Parliament in the past few years, and what is expected to be accomplished in the future. He said he had come to America firmly convinced that he would obtain the assistance desired. He hopes to raise $50,000 in America.

In the past three years Mr. Redmond said the conditions of Ireland have greatly improved.

Of late, a still greater work has been accomplished. It has been only a few years ago that the Irish had actually no voice in the government of their home affairs, but it is much better now. At the present time all local government is in the hands of county councils elected by the people.

The use of arms in giving the people absolute freedom, Mr. Redmond says, would be fruitless. It is realized by all classes in Ireland that the only plausible means to secure freedom is through parliament. Money must be raised to assist in electing to parliament those who are friendly to the freedom of Ireland.

Other speakers were Captain Donnellan and Patrick O'Brien, who are accompanying Mr. Redmond on his tour, and J. Nick Perrin.

A committee appointed to take subscriptions reported the following, besides many smaller contributions:

R. C. Kerens, $300; Colonel Moses Watmore, $200; Archbishop Glennon, $100; Ed Butler, $100; Mrs. O'Reilly, $100; Jack Glennon, Mobile, Ala., $50; Mr. O'Hearn, Parsons, Kan., $50; Edmund Wallace, East St. Louis, $50; James A. Reardon, $25; H. J. Tierney, $25; M. E. Smith, $25; E. T. Carmody, $50; M. J. Gavin, $10; Edmund Keene, $10.

WEEK'S ADMISSIONS AT WORLD'S FAIR EXCEED A MILLION

World's Fair Officials Hope Record May Be Sustained by Increasing Crowds of Visitors.

WEEK'S RECORD INDICATES FAIR'S GROWING SUCCESS.

Monday, Sept. 12	112,432
Tuesday, Sept. 13	110,616
Wednesday, Sept. 14	134,642
Thursday, Sept. 15	404,450

RECORD BY MONTHS.

April, one day	187,795
May, 26 days	1,001,291
June, 26 days	2,124,836
July, 27 days	2,343,567
August, 27 days	3,088,743
September, 15 days	2,276,208
Total	11,022,508

For the first time since the World's Fair opened the admissions of one week have exceeded 1,000,000, last week's number being 1,027,918. St. Louis Day, with its 404,450, served to materially increase the attendance, but there is a hope that the attendance may now be kept up to the million-a-week mark, as the regular crowds are increasing rapidly.

The Exposition management looks to Illinois day and the Congress of Arts and Sciences to swell the week's attendance. Aside from these, other special days will add their thousands.

The attendance last week was 26,627 more than the entire number of admissions during the month of May at the World's Fair, while the attendance for the first 15 days of September is 2,276,208, or 812,535 less than the entire attendance for August.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES HERE.

Ashes of Mrs. George Hibbard to Be Interred in Cincinnati.

The body of Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton Hibbard, wife of Maj. George B. Hibbard of New York, who was for many years a resident of St. Louis while he was contractor for the Texas & St. Louis Railroad, has been cremated and the ashes taken to Cincinnati to be interred beside the graves of her parents.

Mrs. Hibbard became ill after arriving in St. Louis several weeks ago to see the World's Fair. She was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where she died Thursday. Mrs. Hibbard was well known in St. Louis a number of years ago.

CHICAGO'S DAY A BIG DAY.

Indications for a large attendance of Chicago people at the World's Fair on Chicago Day, Oct. 8, are excellent, a committee having reached St. Louis to make preliminary arrangements. The committee, composed of Messrs. Bennett, Foreman and Carey, spent Sunday at the Exposition.

They were accompanied over the grounds by several World's Fair officials. They report that there is great interest in Chicago in the Exposition, and that there will be a large attendance from that city on Chicago Day. The greater number, it is said, will come to St. Louis the first day of Illinois week, and will remain several days.

REGISTER NOW OR YOU CAN'T VOTE

First of Four Days of Enrollment Opens With Delay in Only One Precinct.

In the Ninth precinct of the Twenty-seventh ward registration was delayed Monday morning by the non-arrival of the Democratic judges. Two judges and one clerk for each party were appointed for this precinct, as for every other one in the city.

The Democratic clerk arrived 20 minutes after the polls opened and messengers were sent for the delinquent judges.

Registration places in each precinct opened at 8 o'clock Monday morning and will remain open until 8 o'clock at night. For four days registration will continue, and none who do not register will be permitted to vote in the November election.

New registration books have been opened, and the name of each voter in the precinct must be entered during the present registration period, whether or not his name was on the books before.

Souvenir Badge for State Day.

"Missouri day," Oct. 11, will be signalized by a souvenir badge which the Missouri commission is preparing to present to every Missourian who visits the World's Fair on the state's day. It will be a circular medal connected with links at the top, to which is fastened a pin bearing the word "Missouri." The state seal will be imprinted on both sides of the medal, while in relief on the reverse side will be a picture of the Missouri building.

BOY KILLED AT CHURCH DOOR

Three Companions and Two Horses, on Which They Were Mounted, Struck by Lightning.

MARIETTA, I. T., Sept. 19.—One boy and two horses were killed and four boys seriously injured by lightning in front of the Baptist Church here.

Tom Rohe, aged 14, was killed.

The injured:

Frank Kresselberg, aged 15, who is perhaps fatally hurt. Burt Howard, aged 15, who is seriously hurt. Fred Settle, stunned, and Edward Parker slightly shocked.

The boys had just ridden up to the Baptist Church to attend the service at 9 o'clock. There were three on each horse. A small shower came up accompanied by lightning and thunder. The bolt descended before they had dismounted.

AUTO WRECK VICTIMS BETTER.

Miss Marquitz and Elmer Sauers Expected to Recover.

Miss Lulu Marquitz of 1106A Leonard avenue, who was seriously injured in the automobile wreck near Ballwin, St. Louis County, early Saturday morning, is improving, according to Dr. M. W. McClaire of Ballwin, and he has hopes that she will recover. She is being treated at the physician's home.

Elmer Sauers, the 12-year-old boy who, in falling from the broken machine Saturday, suffered concussion of the brain, is also reported improving.

The body of J. W. Killeen, chauffeur, who was killed in the wreck, has been ordered sent to New York.

NO MONEY TILL CURED

FORMER WORLD'S FAIR ENVOY, NOW DIPLOMAT, AMAZES PANAMA PUBLIC

Champagne and Cocktails Liberally Employed by Minister John Barrett in Winning Affections of Isthmian Dwellers While Uncle Sam Pays the Freight.

HON. JOHN BARRETT, minister to Panama, formerly World's Fair commissioner to the far East, is astonishing the natives of the isthmus short-order republic by his lavish entertaining.

Already the suave diplomat, whose smile and soft accents are familiarly known in St. Louis' best society, as in other American cities, has gained the title of "Prince Charming" from the Latin people of the new government and he has set a pace for other ministers and diplomats which has proven all too fast.

Expense is the thing the American diplomat knows not how to spare, and it has been hinted that the administration believes that the best way to reach the heart of the people of Panama is through their stomachs.

In an inspired dispatch flashed from Washington, the story of Barrett's lavish entertaining is told and a Panama paper is quoted as saying: "These are only the beginning of a series of dinners which the minister proposes to give at the legation during the next few weeks, the intimation, as it were, of a policy calculated to bring the best people of the republic into closer touch with Americans of prominence on the isthmus around the legation festal board."

The feeler is out. Americans are to know that the administration indorses the policy of pickled tripe, lobster, Martinis, etc., to carry its ends as well as the policy of soft speech and the big stick.

Meanwhile Minister Barrett is rolling high. Special trains, champagne dinners and other luxuries are his daily diversion, and the United States pay the freight.

MUNYON

Has Proved the Value of His Remedies in a Million Homes.

I can well afford to ignore the petty jealousy, professional spleen and the ignorance which is back of the statements which now and then make their appearance as a means of belittling the unmatchable values of my remedies and preparations, and it is well for the sick and the ailing if they ignore them, too. As a matter of fact, in the compounding of these remedies and preparations is concentrated the knowledge and successful researches of the brightest medical minds that the century has produced, and those who make false statements know it. Every great discoverer who has contributed to the welfare and progress of the world and the well-being of the people has been assailed and misrepresented. Why should I be excepted?

There is nothing experimental about my preparations. Years ago they passed that stage and countless thousands have testified that they have found health through their use.

There are no "cure alls" among them, but my list of remedies contains a separate cure for each disease. That is why they are called home remedies, or the "family doctor," as they are frequently termed by those who depend upon them absolutely to keep the household in good health.—MUNYON.

Clerk of the Board of Public Works Cured by Paw-Paw.

R. J. Shields of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is one of the best known men in eastern New York, especially in political circles. He says that Munyon's Paw-Paw straightened out a balky stomach, restored his appetite, brought him good sleep and made him a well man. He says it is a wonderful medicine.

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure has cured more cases of rheumatism than all other rheumatism remedies combined.

Munyon's Kidney Cure has saved hundreds from Bright's Disease and never fails to heal and help ailing kidneys.

Munyon's Paw-Paw Laxative Pills keep the liver in healthy action, and positively cure constipation, biliousness, jaundice and all other ailments arising from a torpid liver.

Ask any druggist for Munyon's Magazine and Guide to Health. They are free, but are worth their weight in gold.

LARGEST COLLECTION OF RARE DIAMONDS

In the World at the Fair—Said to Contain Many Bargains for Appreciative Collectors.

It is generally conceded that the most interesting and important exhibit at the Fair is the rare diamond collection of the celebrated diamond cutter, A. Ekungan of Paris. This display contains many stones which are the only known specimens of their kind, several ranging in price from $50,000 to $100,000 and comprising all the colors of the rainbow, with over 70 distinct additional shades, while one magnificent canary gem actually weighs 18 carats more than the famous Koh-i-noor. It is the first and perhaps will be the last opportunity ever offered to study, in an hour, more of the wonders and possibilities of the diamond than is afforded by the years of experience of the oldest diamond expert and certainly is an unusual chance for those who recognize and appreciate fine gems to add to their collections.

Fashion's Many Fascinating Fall Fancies Can Be Viewed in Beautiful and Bewildering Variety During

Our First Grand Autumn Opening

Today, September Nineteenth. Tomorrow, September Twentieth. Wednesday, September Twenty-first.

Our First Fall Opening — A Splendid Exposition of The Newest, Most Novel and Worthiest in the World of Dress — Our First Fall Opening

An invitation is freely extended one and all to come and see how The May Co. can do justice to an Autumn Opening—especially on this occasion, the first in its history here, and one that must set a high standard for future similar events.

Every fashion fount has yielded ideas. Some are from the American style source, New York City, while others are from such Transatlantic homes of fashion as London, Paris and Berlin. But, no matter from whence they came, you can rest assured they are quite correct.

Come and get a proper perspective of fashion's doings for the next few months. A stroll through this beautiful store will give you an abundance of impressions. The exhibits are not only sources of ideas, but are so arranged as to delight the eye of every beholder with such desirable attributes as grace, symmetry, harmonious colorings, vivid effects, radical, original designs, conservative, quiet styles, etc. The whole range of cultivated human tastes is anticipated. Why, the colors alone are worth a page of print. They rival the exquisite autumnal hues of Mother Nature herself.

The Autumn tones of the woodlands have been the colorists' inspiration. You will find exquisite shades in brown, terra cotta, coq de rouche (or burnt orange), soft green, olive green, Indian red, etc.

Pattern Hats, Fashionable Furs, Suits and Costumes, Silks, Dress Goods, Lingerie, Etc.

There is a wealth of novelty on the second floor alone—in the Millinery and Garment Sections, two of the most beautiful in the country—that every pair of eyes in St. Louis should see.

JACK JOHNSON NO MATCH FOR "JEFF"

Champion Justified, Says Robt. Edgren, Noted Expert, in Refusing to Meet the Colored Man.

FRANK ERNE IS IN TRAINING

Clever Lightweight Will Make Another Effort to Get Into the Fighting Game.

BY ROBERT EDGREN,

The Noted Cartoonist and Expert on Pugilism.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—There has been a great lot of talk about "Jack" Johnson, the colored heavyweight. Critics have commented freely on Jeffries' refusal to fight the black man, and some have gone so far as to accuse Jeff of hiding behind the "color line" because he feared Johnson as a fighter.

Jeff isn't afraid of any man or bear living.

If he wants to draw a "color line" he has a right to. No one ever accused John L. Sullivan of cowardice because he refused to fight any but white men. And Jeffries' ring record is greater even than Sullivan's.

A glance at Johnson's record does not show that he is in a position to demand a meeting with Jeffries for the championship, even leaving the color line out of consideration.

He has had 22 fights, and has won eight, all with fourth-class men, with knockouts. Jeffries has fought 19 battles, and has knocked out 13 opponents. Some others were beaten until they "quit." His rivals have been the pick of the world's heavyweights, and Fitz and Corbett—the best of them—he knocked out twice.

Johnson is a clever boxer, without a punch. Even the worst heavyweight ever seen in a ring, "Mexican Pete" Everett, went 20 rounds with him. So did little George Gardner, the ex-light heavyweight champion, and old "Hank" Griffin and "Denver Ed" Martin, with the glass jaw. "Sandy" Ferguson of Boston, a "mixed ale" boxer, who never whipped a good man in his life, fought him 10 rounds a little while ago, and lost by a narrow margin.

The greatest thing that Johnson has ever done was to knock out Jack Jeffries and Joe Kennedy, Jeff's sparring partners. And Jim Jeffries could knock them both out at once in the same ring, and with one hand.

There are lots of other fighters who are further up in the line waiting for a chance at the heavyweight champion.

Terry McGovern, for instance.

Frank Erne Back in the Game.

Frank Erne is going back into the game. Four years ago, Erne was the fastest and most clever lightweight that ever held the world's championship. Just a little over four years ago, he struck the pugilistic chutes, and took the slip that soon dropped him out of the championship class.

That was in the fight with Terry McGovern. Erne never was wise when it came to making matches. He was too willing to let the other fellow have the terms his own way, and to fight anybody under any conditions at all.

He agreed to make an almost impossible weight for McGovern. Then he came down to New York to train in one of the hottest summer months on record. The result was that he dried out almost to the featherweight limit, and could not even come up to the allowed weight limit again. Terry beat him in three furious rounds. Strange as it may seem to modern "featherweight champions," Terry—fighting Erne away below the lightweight limit—did not even claim the lightweight title.

That defeat was Erne's first. It took a lot of heart out of him. Then, a year later, he fought "Rube" Ferns, welterweight champion, at Fort Erie, giving away many pounds. For nine rounds Frank battered Ferns about the ring, and then was knocked out himself.

(Ferns did not lay claim to the lightweight championship.)

The next year, Joe Gans fought Erne, knocked him out with the first punch, and took the title.

Erne lost heart entirely, and a few months later was knocked out by Britt in San Francisco. In the one fight he has had since that time, with Zurbrick in Fort Erie, Erne seemed nervous, and showed little of his old form, although he won the decision.

For three months now, Frank Erne has been training steadily. He has determined to get back his old place in the game, and if a man who has dropped out can come back, Erne will.

Friends of the cleanest little fighter in the history of the sport will watch his coming battles with interest.

TURF GOSSIP

The best boys riding in the East now are higher in class, so far as manners and morals go, than the little imps of six, eight and ten years ago. George Odom, Willie Shaw and Tommy Burns are level-headed, sensible youths; Arthur Redfern has got over being "fresh," and is doing excellent saddle work. Lucien Lyne, O'Neill and Hildebrand are typical little gentlemen.

When The Lady won the mile and an eighth handicap at Harlem, she scored her fiftieth victory. The daughter of Kingston is now 7 years old, and began her racing career as a 2-year-old in 1899. She barely got out of the maiden class that season, but the year following as a 3-year-old, she won a total of 26 races, which is the record for fillies of that age in either this country or England. As a 4-year-old in 1901 she won five races, and as a 5-year-old in 1902 she won first 13 times. Last season as a 6-year-old she won only once, but so far this season she has won three times, which puts her race winning record on the fifty line.

Fall Has Fatal Results.

As the result of a 14-foot fall from a scaffold at 4268 Tennessee avenue, Aug. 3 last, when he received a broken back, Louis F. Widmann, aged 44, is dead at his home, 4407 Minnesota avenue. Widmann, who was a contractor, was engaged in erecting the building where he fell. The fall was the result of missing his footing while at work. He is survived by his widow.

Olympic Archery Today.

Another Olympic championship tournament opened at the World's Fair stadium this morning, when about 50 of the best archers of the United States assembled to match their skill with the bow and arrow. In the morning contests the shooting was over the 60, 50 and 40 yard distances. This afternoon the longer ranges will be used and some close shooting is expected. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded to the winners of the first three places.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—Under threatening skies and on a soft, sticky field, the Browns and the Cleveland Blues opened their final series of the season with a double-header.

In the absence of Capt. Lajoie, who is not with his team on account of an injured knee, Flick is playing at second and the youngster Roseman is occupying the right suburb.

The batteries in the opening game are: Big Bill Bernhard and Bemis for the visitors and Wee Willie Sudhoff and Sugden for St. Louis. King and O'Loughlin are the umpires and the attendance is about 500.

GERMANS PROTEST DIVING CONTEST

German Commissioner, Dr. Lewald, Holding Back Trophy Until Chief Sullivan Sustains Judges.

Dr. Theodor Lewald, German commissioner to the World's Fair, has protested the decision of the judges in awarding first prize in the Olympic fancy diving contest to Dr. Sheldon, the American entry.

Dr. Lewald offered a trophy for the winner of that event, and he will not present it until his formal protest, which has been lodged with Chief Sullivan of the physical culture department, has been acted upon.

As the fancy diving contest is not provided for in the A. A. U. rules there can hardly be any appeal from the decision of the judges of the games. The merit of the contestants was decided without any set of rules governing the competition and was consequently entirely arbitrary.

The judges decided the event in favor of Dr. Sheldon because he struck the water cleanly after each dive. The Germans performed much more wonderful dives, but frequently struck the water on their faces or chests. It has been argued that as the contest was for "fancy" diving, and as there are no rules governing the form to be observed the contestants had a right to land on their hands and knees if they so desired.

CHORUS GIRLS TO SERVE AS MODELS

Will Don Latests Parisian Creations at the Dressmakers' Meeting in Exposition Hall.

The big east nave of the Exposition building, Thirteenth and Olive streets, was turned into a palace of costumes Monday when the dressmakers took possession of the place for their annual convention. Handsome gowns were to be seen in profusion and hundreds of dressmakers were busy critically viewing them. The general confusion was increased by the attendance of a hundred or more young women from the "Louisiana" company, now playing at Exposition Music Hall. This was rehearsal morning, but according to the press agent, the girls could hardly be gotten away from the handsome costumes in time to begin work.

The business sessions of the convention, which will last four days, opened with a lecture Monday afternoon. Madame Whitney of New York delivered the lecture and made demonstrations in draping.

Tuesday afternoon's lecture will be the most novel yet arranged. It will be given in Music Hall, which has been given over to the dressmakers from 3 to 5 o'clock, and 25 chorus girls, will serve as models. They will represent all styles and figures and on them will be displayed some of the newest of the Parisian importations. The girls will also be used as models for demonstrating the art of robing, showing how a maid should assist her mistress in donning her toilette. Mme. Whitney will be the demonstrator.

THRONGS FILL MAY STORE.

Fall Millinery Opening Atracts Large Crowd of Shoppers.

The May Co.'s opening of fall millinery, suits, coats and new dress goods, commenced Monday, and from early morning until a late afternoon hour throngs of delighted shoppers filled the store.

An extraordinary display of beautiful hats was shown in the millinery department. They were made up in exquisite materials of the new fad shades, blending from light to dark in pleasing harmony.

The counters were prettily decorated with potted plants, and brilliant colored flowers making a setting for the new stock.

Many of the new hats are large with broad brims, while toques in shirred silk, with unique pompon trimmings are to be worn.

Colors predominate and exquisite shades in brown, terra cotta, burnt orange, soft green, Indian red, and blues, will be worn for hat trimmings.

The greatest care has been taken by the trimmers in this establishment to produce effective and stylish hats in the cheaper grades for ordinary wear, and there is a "chic" appearance to them that will surprise even the purchaser when told their price.

Beautiful ostrich plumes in all shades filled one case, while vari-colored quills and pomons were shown, to be added to the plainer untrimmed hats.

Many imported pattern hats were shown for evening wear in the pale blue and lighter shades of silk and velvet.

In the cloak and suit department the glass cases were filled with many fetching and exquisite designs in new fall tailor-made gowns and well-fitting cloaks.

An exclusive line of waists and skirts is to be found at the May store, unlike anything to be seen elsewhere, and the best New York and London ideas carried out.

In the gowns are shown the new taffetas in hand-embroidered designs.

Lace robes and crepe de chine gowns, appropriate for evening wear, are shown in beautiful patterns. The new motor fur-lined coats and delicate fabrics in evening coats are a fascinating feature.

Imported French and Scandinavian leather garments for automobiling are an especial line, very popular in Paris, and for which the May Co. are exclusive agents in St. Louis.

PARENTS SEEK MISSING BOY.

Police Are Asked to Find Son of A. D. Chappell.

George Chappell, the 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Chappell, has disappeared from their residence at 4248 Morgan street, and his parents have asked the police to aid in the search for him. They have not seen him since last Friday.

A dislike of school and a desire to travel is thought to be the cause of the boy's disappearance. He had frequently told his companions that he intended going to Memphis, Tenn., and that he intended to carry out his plan in this respect is believed by his parents.

The boy is described as being 4 feet 10 inches tall and weighing 100 pounds. He wore a light gray suit, a sailor cap to match and black shoes and stockings.

A scar, caused by a burn, on the right side of his face, 4 inches long, and a bald spot on the top of his head are given as marks by which the boy could easily be identified.

CHILDREN'S PARTY POISONED BY FOOD

One Is Dead, Two Are Dying and Twelve Others Are Critically Sick.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SIOUX CITY, Io., Sept. 19.—One child is dead, two dying and 12 others are critically sick, some of them expected to die, from ptomaine poisoning, traced to poisoned chicken served at a party at the home of Arthur Reeves in Seney.

The 6-year-old daughter of John Osborn is dead, her sister and Wallie Reeves will die. Others in a dangerous condition are Jessie Reeves, aged 17; two other children of George Reeves, Mrs. John Osborn, two children of Edward Hughes and children of Grant Chapman, Enall Chapman, C. W. Cook and Elmer Augustin.

The chickens were killed in the morning, boned, pressed and served in the evening.

Had to Let Prisoner Go.

While waiting for a patrol wagon at Sixth and St. Charles streets to take two prisoners, William Egan and Thomas Haney, to the station, Detective Courtney reports that Egan jerked away from him and escaped in the crowd. The officer was unable to pursue him without releasing his other prisoner. Both men had been arrested on suspicion.

If you do not register you cannot vote.

An American citizen with a conscience is not necessarily a weakling.

All the supporters of boodle will register and vote. Let honest citizens do the same.

With our enormous tariff taxation and internal revenue there is no excuse for a treasury deficit.

It looks as if Chicago day is to be a "hummer." St. Louis should turn out and increase the hum.

The bayonet of the United States army is now a rod; and we may be sure that T. R. will not spare the rod.

WALBRIDGE'S UNEXPLAINED RECORD.

On Aug. 7 the Post-Dispatch published a page giving the records of Col. Walbridge in the House of Delegates, the Council and the mayor's office. The records showed that the present Republican candidate for governor, during his entire official career in this city, not only failed to oppose, denounce or expose the boodle combines and machine gangs which were plundering the city, but actually worked with them. They show that as mayor he surrounded himself with henchmen, some of whom were of the most unworthy character and malodorous reputation; that he helped his friends to get municipal contracts detrimental to the city's interests and advantageous to their own; that he devoted his time to building up a personal and party machine of an obnoxious type.

In the Council Col. Walbridge helped to jam through, against public protests, the Ed Butler's garbage contract grab, from the evil effects of which the city has suffered to the present day. That was the beginning of a marked friendship between Walbridge and Butler.

The records show that Col. Walbridge supported franchise grabs, for the promotion of which evidence subsequently brought to light showed that $400,000 in bribes had been expended.

More than a month and a half has passed since these facts were published, yet Col. Walbridge has not said a word in his own defense or in explanation of his actions. It is fair to assume that he "stands pat" on the records as published.

It is hardly necessary to contrast this record of acquiescence in legislative jobbery and machine bossism with the aggressive brilliant fight of Circuit Attorney Folk against all of the combined forces of the boodlers and the corrupt machine. If Col. Walbridge knew of the rascality which was carried on around him, he is of course unfit to be governor of Missouri. If he did not discover what was patent to everybody who knew anything about municipal matters, he is not the man to put on guard at the state capital. In either event his candidacy is an appeal to corruptionists.

If the mayor and the Board of Public Improvements have the courage of men they will defy Ed Butler and his servants in the House of Delegates and work out the garbage problems without regard to the looters.

PUBLIC MUST BE GOOD.

Delegate McCarthy says "the public must stop kicking before we do anything" toward settling the garbage business.

In other words, the public must be good or Butler's agent on the floor of the House of Delegates will punish the city by handing the entire community over to the merciful boss. The public interest, the health and wealth of the city, must be meekly placed at the disposal of Ed Butler on his own terms. His good nature will do the rest.

It is "up to" the mayor and Board of Public Improvements to find means to protect an immense city of 700,000 inhabitants from the raids of a gang of plunderers. Are we to be left helpless and imbecile forever?

President Thompson of the Congress of Electricians thinks the battles of the future will be fought by electricians, who will hurl thunderbolts while the generals look on from a safe distance. His forecast is probably correct. Let us hope so. When war is waged in such a manner it will destroy itself.

A REPUBLICAN JEREMIAH.

The local Republican organ publishes a letter from a correspondent which should shiver the timbers of the Democratic organization. Here is one paragraph:

> I tell you, my dear fellow citizens, the duty of the Republican party is very clear, and that is to snow under so deep the infernal Democratic party that the world will utterly forget there ever was such a party. Let us cry to our God for victory over this great evil. Let us in the righteousness of his mighty power topple the walls upon them and cover them over so deep that we shall never hear an echo of their wail. Then our beloved republic will be rid of an incubus which has all too long hindered our progress as the leading nation of the earth.

This is real campaign thunder. A Jeremiah has arisen among the political prophets of the Republican party to blast with his burning words the evil-doers who oppose its righteous decrees and purposes. The benefits which would accrue to the nation from the clean Republican sweep for which this prophet is praying may be doubted by several millions of Americans, but there can be no doubt of the profits that would fall to Republicans. What a fling the Rough Rider, the monopolists and the grafters would have!

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

HOW TO REGISTER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The new election law requires four days' registration in this month—namely, 19th, 20th, 21st and 22nd. Any voter who desires to vote in the general election or in the primary election for the next four years, must registe in his pecincts duing these four days. He must register in the General Registration books and also in the new primary books—all other registration is wiped out. Any voter who is registered in the old registration books can go to the City Hall and have his name placed in the old primary books. The old primary books will be used in the primaries to be held in October, as the new books will not then be ready. There is no excuse for any citizen not being qualified to vote as the registration office is in your precinct and right at your doors. Get a move on you and qualify to do your civic duty and quit kicking about people who do the voting and select candidates for office when it is your own fault that you do not have a voice in same. GEO. W. HARRIS.

FUND FOR MRS. VICTORIA O'NEILL.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Seeing in Friday's Post-Dispatch the sad story of Mrs. Victoria O'Neill, I enclose $1 toward her relief, as I suppose the Post-Dispatch will add one more to its long list of benevolence by raising the necessary amount. A WORKING WOMAN.

THOROUGHLY SATISFIED.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It has been our pleasure to enjoy a wonderful week of sightseeing at the greatest and grandest Exposition we have ever attended, and we have visited them all. We specially observed the courteous and obliging manners of the street car employes, the police officers and the patience and urbanity of the Jefferson Guards in handling the large number of visitors on the grounds, the service being far superior to that of the Chicago and Buffalo expositions. We found good accommodations, both off and on the grounds, at very reasonable prices. The city of St. Louis and her people are to be congratulated on the able manner in which she has taken care of her many guests. We would like to advise every child, man and woman to make at least one visit to the greatest educator of our times, the visit to the Philippine exhibit alone being worth years of study and coming miles to see, and the opportunity may never again be at our doors.

We hope when this article is read by the Post-Dispatch's thousands of readers that they will visit the Fair, and visit it again and again, which we intend doing once more before the closing day. TWO LADIES FROM LITTLE ROCK, ARK.

CATERPILLARS DESTROY SHADE TREES.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As practical evidence that one of the great lessons of the World's Fair has not been lost upon us, I should like to see prompt action taken to prevent the threatened destruction of the shade trees on some of our west streets. A pest of caterpillars has appeared in the West End, and I have noted several fine young shade trees destroyed just as effectually as if by fire or the ax. The caterpillars have stripped every leaf, and made their cocoon for next year's crop of moths and grubs.

They are to be found in several places on Morgan, West Belle, Pine and Lindell. They may be on other streets also; I have seen them on these. They should be destroyed at once. I hope, for the credit of St. Louis as a center of horticultural skill, some one better informed than I am will tell how they may be checked. If something is not done, very promptly, many fine shade trees will be lost, and St. Louis badly needs about ten thousand more than she has—not less. It will not answer the purpose to deliberate about this matter for months and years, as is too often done here. The time to act is now. Property owners should get awake. T.

INFORMATION WANTED.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Will you kindly ask through the columns of your paper if any one knows or can tell where I can find the quotation which begins:

> They talk about a woman's sphere,
> As though it had a limit;

And ends,

> There's not a marriage, death or birth,
> That is a feather's weight of worth
> Without a woman in it.

TRAFFIC IN WEST PINE BOULEVARD.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Inasmuch as West Pine boulevad has been asphalted and is considered no thoroughfare, I would thank you to kindly advise me why garbage wagons, heavy dray wagons and other heavy hauling are permitted to go over same, and also why sheep are allowed to be driven along this same boulevard? Is it not in order that certain restrictions be placed upon the traffic of the boulevard in question? A. WEST PINE RESIDENT.

A FLAT SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If flat dwellers insist that landlords put but a single letter at their doorbells indicating the upper from the lower flat, and people are careful to give their addresses as to the upper or lower flat which they occupy, the present annoyance by constant mistakes would undoubtedly be avoided. M.—Population of London, census of 1901, 4,536,541; Greater London, 6,581,372. Railway accidents in the United States are not now compared with those of other countries; they are compared with the losses in great battles.

READER.—The Fair will cost about $50,000,000. Five millions have been raised by popular subscription in St. Louis, $5,000,000 by the city through a bond issue, and $5,000,000 have been appropriated by the United States government. The government, besides, loaned $4,600,000, of which nearly $3,000,000 has been paid. Large sums have been appropriated by the states.

J. K.—Blackheads are an accumulation of dirt. Soap and water and friction with use of an emollient are death to them. Bathe face at night with this lotion: Rosewater, pure alcohol and glycerine, 10 grains each; pulverized borax, 5 grains. After five minutes apply this mixture: Pure alcohol, 80 grains; green soap, 40 grains; wash off in the morning. Blackheads must be carefully forced out or there will be scars or further trouble with them.

NUX VOMICA.—An employe who finds an article in a store, in the event the rightful owner fails to make a claim, is entitled to the article against all the world. But if the employe had knowledge that his employer had a rule, by which all his employes were alike bound, that property found on the premises should belong to him if the real owner made no claim, and the rule was in effect when the finder was employed, then the latter is obliged to yield the property to his employer.

For red nose: Let your diet consist of plain foods, avoiding cakes, pies, doughnuts, etc. Quit eating before you feel fully satisfied. Do not drink with your meals, but between meals drink freely of pure drinking water. By experimenting you can discover for yourself what is causing your annoyance. Sometimes tea or coffee, especially if drunk very hot, will cause a red nose. If you use tea or coffee quit for a while and note the effect. As a rule, it is better to use no liquid with the meals. If you are a meat eater, limit the amount of meat, or leave it off entirely for a month. Try a diet of vegetables and fruits for a while.

MACHINE PLANS MUST BE THWARTED.

From the Rolla, Mo., Sharp Shooter.

The latest orders from machine headquarters is to push Cook and Allen, the two boodle candidates on the Democratic ticket, in ahead of Folk, at the general election. The object being to vindicate boodledom, by showing that Cook and Allen received more votes at the polls than Mr. Folk, and to do this they propose to vote for Cook and Allen and scratch Folk, even if by so doing they elect the Republican candidate. Now the proper thing for Evil Democrats to do is to vote for Folk and scratch Cook and Allen off every ballot they vote. You have got to fight the devil with his own kind of fire.

INTERESTED PARTIES.

From the New York World.

The cordial agreement of the bankers that it would be very bad indeed for the government to open postal savings banks such as most other civilized nations have reminds one of the express magnates' disinterested distrust of a government parcels-post such as every other civilized nation has.

Strange but True, and They're Lovers, Too.

THE TARIFF AND TRUST ISSUE

The Prohibitive Tariff and the Abolition of Fair Trade—Monopoly and Monopoly Prices Created by Law.

During three months or somewhat less every four years the Republican administration appeals for the favor of the people, and in making this appeal now the strongest point it urges in its own behalf is that it has prosecuted a trust.

One point on which it says nothing is that the trust selected for the purposes of making this appeal possible was not formed as a result of the prohibitive tariff taxation, but was a combination among railroad managers beyond the limits of tariff protection.

Another point on which it keeps lasting silence is that last year and year before, while this one combination was being proceeded against for violation of the Sherman law, 75 (seventy-five) others, tariff trusts, combinations organized to force high prices in the home market, were formed and incorporated in equal violation of the Sherman act, without attracting either reproof or attention from it.

This year, combinations newly formed or in progress of reorganization up to June last, were intended to bring 3334 different plants under monopoly management. And of this no notice whatever was taken.

Up to June this year, there had been formed seven great industrial monopolies, depending on the protection of the Federal government for control of this market, and by these seven combinations, 1528 establishments and plants, once independent industries, were brought under monopoly control for the purpose of collecting from consumers the high prices made possible by a closed market.

Up to June this year, there had been formed besides these seven great industrial "trusts," 233 others, all incorporated since 1898, the purpose of their incorporation being monopoly control of industries existing as independent and competing corporations prior to 1898.

Up to June of this year 298 of these tariff-fostered trusts were formed to control 3426 plants, once under the control of local managements in different parts of the country, where they were conducted as local enterprises, to foster the "competition in the home market" promised by Sherman, Grant, Arthur, Blaine and Harrison.

Three of the seven great industrial combinations which have been incorporated during or since 1899, brought under monopoly control 534 plants and establishments which were competing before the prohibitive tariff law closed the American market and gave them the invitation to control it through monopoly combinations.

This is the whole logic of the situation. When the market is closed against outside competition by prohibitive tariff taxes in any line, it is an invitation to manufacturers in that line to combine and abolish competition in the closed market by combination, as it has been abolished by law protecting them against the right of the consumer to buy from outside. Otherwise on a "protection of 50 to 75 cents on the dollar against outside competition, they might not collect more than a third from the consumer at home. By organizing, they can proceed to collect for themselves up to the limit of the tax, which is thus a tax, not for the treasury since it keeps out imports, but for the trusts which combine and collect it for their own treasuries, from housewives, from salaried men of small incomes, from day laborers, from farmers, from every one who has a week's bills to pay out of a week's earnings.

The figures of the operations of the prohibitive tariff law given above are not "campaign figures." They are from the reports made to corporation managers for their own information. The authority for them is the editor of "Moody's Manual of Statistics." They refer in each case to the date and place of incorporation. They give the number of once independent companies combined and the terms of the combination. All information of public interest is given in each case with a particularity which shows the violation of the Sherman act so clearly in score after score of cases that the administration might at any time have verified it point by point. Yet of all this it took no notice while it was making an anti-trust record by prosecuting a combination formed outside the lines of prohibitive tariff taxation.

In the campaign of 189-, when under a Republican tariff levied to admit goods so that the high duties on them would be paid into the treasury, it was pointed out clearly by the evidence of the situation as these combinations had then begun to organize, that unless they did create monopoly in the home market, the actual conditions would become such as "protectionists" until then had always promised. Their great argument up to the campaign of 1892 was that "competition in the home market" would give the American consumer his local industries, and his independent local market, and at the same time give him prices on manufactured goods decreasing instead of increasing.

Since 1892 not a word of this argument has been heard from any advocate of "protection," because the logic of the closed market has now demonstrated itself in hundreds of tariff-created combinations formed to close down mills, to abolish competition in the home market and to collect for themselves the tax from the consumer which the prohibitive nature of the duty keeps out of the treasury.

Every household in the country now pays this tribute to monopoly under a law specially devised to prevent the possibility of competition with the monopolies it favors. They themselves drew or revised the schedules of the law. They knew what they wanted. They secured it and they are operating on it until it is a low estimate of the tribute they levy above a fair trade price to say that they are now taking twenty-five cents in monopoly tariff taxation out of every dollar of the earnings of every household in the country.

They sup in every dish. They reach into every pocket. They take once and return to take again and the Republican administration which created them and "stands pat" on its record, appeals to the country to support it as "an enemy of trusts."

INTERNATIONAL CHILD EXCHANGE

An Interesting French Experiment That Is Proving a Gratifying Success.

THE International Child Exchange, founded in Paris by Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, by M. Pierre Baudin, ex-minister of public works, and by M. Toni Mathieu, with whom the idea originated, is meeting with great success, and, together with arbitration treaties and visits of British and German workingmen, has become a prominent factor in promoting friendly foreign relations, writes a Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune. A weak point in the French character is the lack of desire to travel and learn about other countries by personal observation. Ninety-nine out of a hundred Frenchmen are content to spend their lives at home, moving once a year for a few weeks to the seaside or to some inland watering place. This being the extent of their travels, the French take but little pains to acquire a knowledge of foreign languages.

The late Jules Simon as far back as 1886, made an effort to convince parents of the importance of teaching their children at least one foreign tongue by the only effectual method, namely, by sending them to foreign schools. The propagandists met, however, with no success. One great moral difficulty stood in the way, and one practical, but insuperable, difficulty. The first was the inevitable uncertainty as to the well-being and happiness of the child when sent so far from the parental eye. The second was the extra expense entailed upon the parents. A solution of both these difficulties was found last year by a young French father who was anxious to secure for his own children the advantage of a knowledge of a foreign tongue acquired in the most natural way, by residence among the people who spoke it.

A System Established.

M. Toni Mathieu placed himself in correspondence with professors of foreign colleges throughout Europe, and by means of the press of the different countries he explained a scheme by which children might reap all the advantages of such residence in foreign countries while being adequately protected from any possible dangers. He proposed a system of exchange. A French parent wishing his child to study German would send him to the care of a German parent without compunction, when he in turn received the child of the German family to whom he thus intrusted his son. In this way each child was in a sense a little hostage. The French and German mothers would vie with each other in lavishing on the little stranger deposited with her all the care and attention she would desire for her own child. At the same time the practical difficulty, the increased expense of the child's education, was eliminated. The only extra expense by this arrangement was that of the journey.

Last summer as the result of his work, M. Mathieu found himself in communication with 50 families in France and the same number abroad, who were willing to undertake an exchange of children for the holidays. The countries who took up the scheme most heartily were Germany, England, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, and the exchanges thus effected were almost exclusively boys. A great many demands were received for an interchange of girls, but it was not possible to satisfy them by reason of the strong disinclination of French parents to trust their daughters to strangers.

Gratifying Success.

The experiments were, without exception, entirely successful, and to meet the increased calls upon him for the present year M. Toni Mathieu formed a small company which he called the "Society for the International Exchange of Children and Youths for the Study of Foreign Tongues." M. d'Estournelles de Constant is the honorary president, and M. Pierre Baudin, ex-minister of public works, the acting president. Fifty children have again been placed in foreign homes, the society undertaking all inquiries, and convincing itself of the suitability of the various applicants. The parents send in their demand, enclosing a small fee to cover cost of correspondence, and the society does the rest. The number might have been trebled if French girls had been obtainable. But in truth the placing of these 50 has severely taxed the resources of the society. The fees charged do not cover the expenses incurred, and if the work is to be extended next year some means of getting funds will have to be considered. The chambers of commerce in the different countries might perhaps be approached, and their patronage and support might fitly be given to what can hardly fail to prove a very useful work. At all events a good start has been made and public interest has been aroused. No doubt help will be forthcoming.

In Edwin Arnold's Memory.

From the New York Evening Post.

It is known that Sir Edwin Arnold desired earnestly that his ashes might rest finally in his college chapel at Oxford, and by the courtesy of the master and fellows of University College this wish has been fulfilled. Now a committee has been formed, with the Right Hon. Lord Brassey at its head, to create a suitable memorial to the poet and scholar. It seemed best to honor his memory by establishing a scholarship or scholarships at Oxford for proficiency in Oriental literature, and to make those of such a character that they may be open to students from the East. Subscriptions to this memorial are invited and may be sent to Messrs. Henry S. King & Co., 65 Cornhill, London, E. C.

A Classic Series of Fairy Tales.

McClure-Phillips will bring out, Sept. 22, an interesting reprint of a classic series of fairy tales bearing the title "Granny's Wonderful Chair." The volume was a favorite with the authoress Frances Hodgson Burnett, and, in fact, the first book she ever possessed, and she writes a "truly" fairy story as an introduction to it, telling how the book came into her possession, disappeared, and magically turned up again many years later. The stories are unusual in their style and in their imaginative quality, but are written so simply that the smallest child can understand them. The book is illustrated with pictures in color.

Folk Should Be Elected.

From the Chicago Tribune (Rep).

If a community loves honesty in politics it will stand by the man who has proved that that is his creed. It will promote him whenever opportunity occurs. If it really desires integrity in the administration of its affairs it will not turn a cold shoulder on the man of approved integrity who has made it plain by sending boodlers of high and low degree to the penitentiary that he is an enemy of boodling.

Why should any Missourian who is himself honest refuse to vote for Joseph W. Folk and hence refuse to encourage honesty? The Republican may say, "My party has nominated Mr. Walbridge, and he is an excellent man of irreproachable character. He, if elected, will fight boodling." No doubt of it, but he could not do it so effectively as Mr. Folk, for he has not had the experience. He does not know so well the methods of the boodlers or how to meet them. The legislature assuredly will be Democratic, and a governor of that faith will have more influence with them than a Republican executive.

The governor of Missouri has no control over national politics. Mr. Folk, if elected, will be quite unable to change the tariff or the method of governing the Philippines. He will have nothing to do with the questions which are determined at Washington by congress and the president. All that Mr. Folk can do, if governor, is to administer the affairs of the state, to see that its laws are enforced, and to fight corruption wherever his trained eye may detect its presence. That he will do these things admirably no truthful Missouri Republican will deny.

The defeat in Missouri of a man who is conspicuous because he is an anti-corruptionists will dishearten throughout the country all men who believe that aggressive honesty in public life should receive a popular reward. If the honest man in politics has no assurance of an approving constituency, he will get out of politics and let the rascals manage affairs to suit themselves.

Foreign Words.

In its review of the latest volume of the Oxford Dictionary the London Times points out a curious fact illustrating the extent to which the English language, like the race, built up from foreign sources.

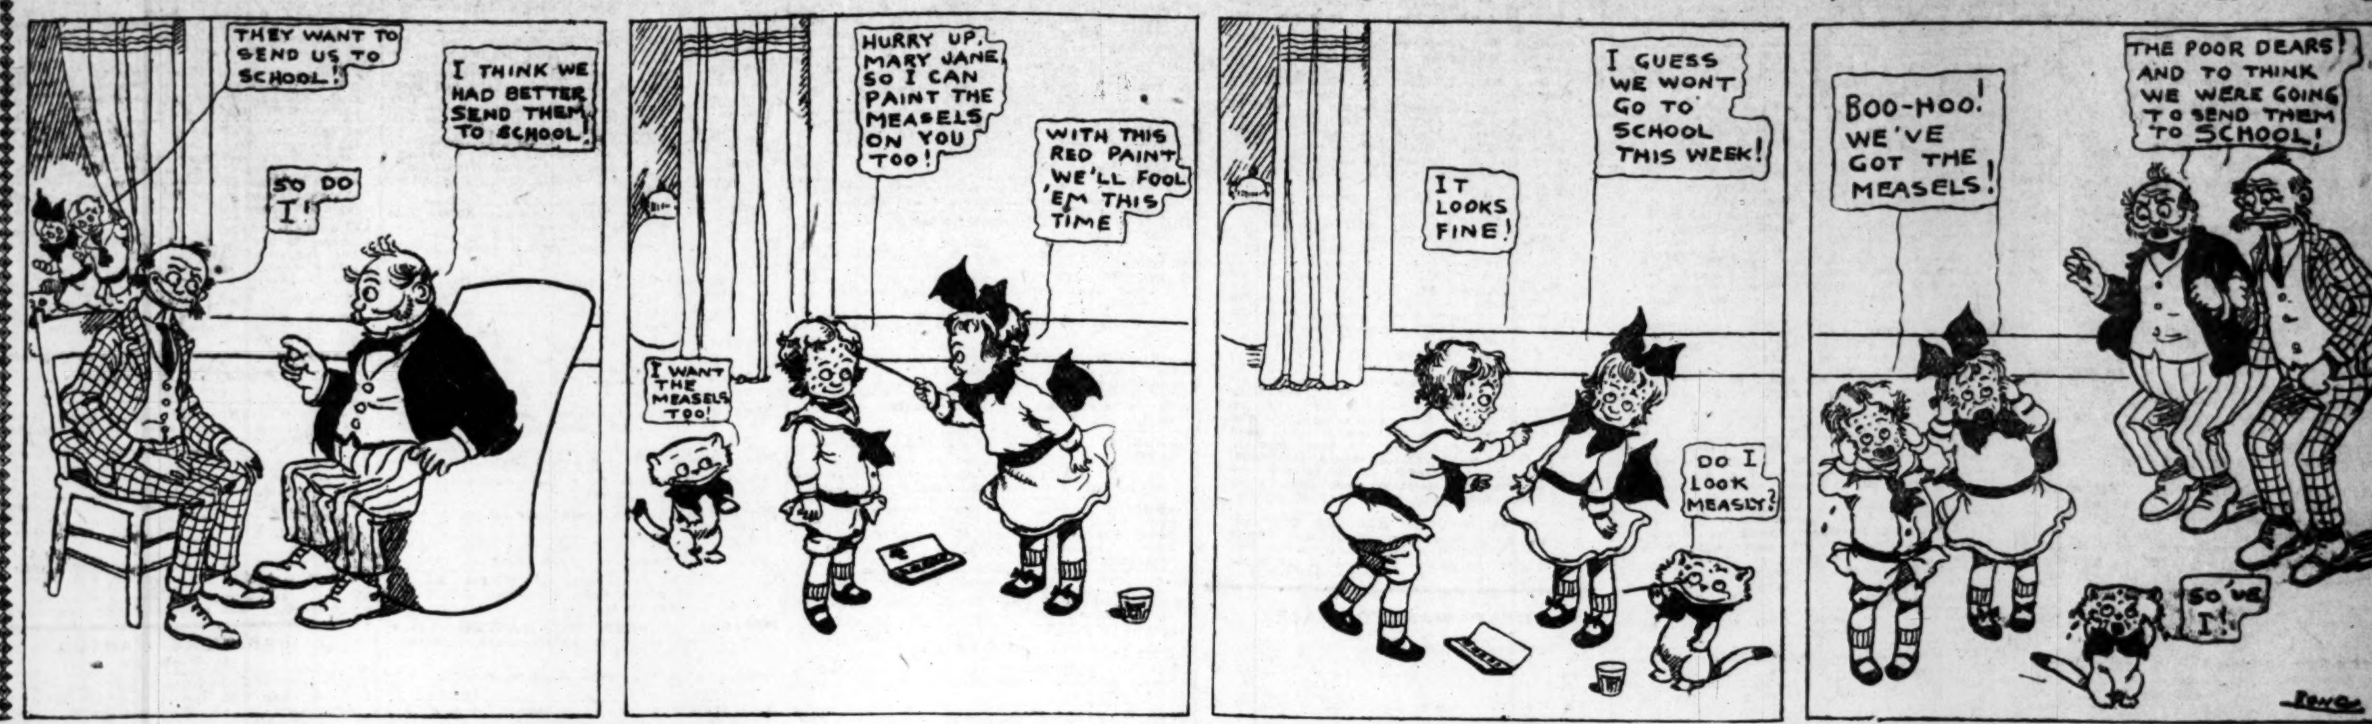

The part under consideration contains 2543 main words. And how many of these 2454 words are native English words?

One! "Pan"—"the culinary vessel"—is the little, homely word which alone survives to remind us of the strong and simple race from which we spring. And even "pan," we may add, is in the eye of many philologists suspect from its likeness to the Latin "patina."

Sixty-six columns devoted to word beginning with "para" by no means exhaust excretions from the Greek. But Latin, of course, forms the largest foreign element.

"Recalcitrant" belongs to a class which curiously illustrates the complete Latinization of English. You may scold a subordinate who does not "apprehend" your meaning and even "insult" him if he proves "recalcitrant;" but you cannot, if you would preserve your dignity, scold him because he does not "catch on" or "jump on" him if he "kicks" at your scolding. Yet these words are only the Saxon equivalent of the Latin.

STORIES ABOUT PEOPLE.

Beat Tom Taggart.

"I have just been beaten at my own game," laughingly acknowledged Chairman Thomas Taggart as he and William F. Sheehan joined a mutual acquaintance after lunching together at a well-known Broadway cafe the other day.

Replying to a query from the other, Chairman Taggart continued:

"Sheehan and myself were not very hungry today, and the colored waiter only brought us a check for $2. I handed the waiter a $5 bill, and he brought me back two ones and two half dollars in change.

"What do you suppose he said when I asked him why he didn't bring me some smaller change? He just shuffled his feet a moment, and sputtered:

"'De Lawd loveth a cheerful givah.'"—New York Times.

Looking Backward.

At the Franklin Inn, a literary club of Philadelphia, a group of young novelists were citing similes and metaphors that they liked. Harrison Morris, the poet and art critic, said:

"A simile that appealed to me strongly was one made in the trial of a thief. This thief was a young man of refined appearance, and during his trial it was shown that he had turned to dishonest courses in order to earn the money wherewith to study for a clergyman's degree. The prosecuting attorney said of his strange conduct:

"'This young man, becoming a thief in order eventually to become a clergyman, is like the oarsman who turns his back upon the place he is steering for.'"—Kansas City Journal.

He Never Finished.

When the late ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed was in California he visited the Lick Observatory on Mount Hamilton. It was a wonderful November day, full of gold and the bloom of flowers. Mr. Reed looked down at the gorgeous landscape 4000 feet below, and, turning to one of his hosts, he said:

"Colonel, this looks too much like a special display got up in honor of the occasion. Tell me what a typical winter day in California is really like."

The Californian thought at once of a day in February, so warm that after a morning bath he had lain in a hammock outdoors, smelled the roses on the trellis, and listened to the trill of the meadowlark among the almond blooms.

He began to describe it eloquently: "Thirteen years ago, on Feb. 22, I took a bath—"

He paused to arrange his account of the roses and the meadowlark. Mr. Reed broke the pause.

"Well, colonel," he said, in admiration, "you do know something about cleanliness out here, don't you?"—Youths' Companion.

The Queer Beggar Boy.

One day the queerest beggar boy
He came to our back door;
He was the raggedyest one
I ever saw before.
My mother told him, "Come right in
And sit down here and rest,"
And gave him lots of buttered bread,
And cake, and turkey breast.

And then she gave him my old coat,
And hat that's almost new,
And then she said, "Poor child, poor child,"
And gave him playthings, too.
But 'stead of being happy, then,
And nice and satisfied,
As I'd 'a' been, that beggar boy
Jus' cried, and cried, and cried!

SEPTEMBER.

September shines as bright and fair
As ever did the June,
And just as balmy is the air,
And just as bright the moon.

How beautiful are all the nights!
How charming are the days!
How filled is each with rare delights
That thrill the heart always!

Who ever saw so bright a year?
Who ever saw a time
So beautiful, so truly dear
And so well worth a rhyme?

How green the leaves are! How divine
Today the landscapes are,
With not one feature their soft, fine,
Sweet tenderness to mar!

How clear the skies are! What a day
To sit alone and rest
And revel in poetic way
In what sweet thoughts are best!

If all the world could ever be
As beautiful as this,
What a world 'twould be for you and me,
How fair, how full of bliss!

THE "SIMPLE" OR THE "STRENUOUS" LIFE?

Distinguished French Apostle of the Former Coming to Lecture, With President Roosevelt's Indorsement—The Fever and Heat of Modern Life Rebuked.

Charles Wagner, the distinguished French apostle of the "Simple Life," is coming to this country to lecture.

Curiously enough, he will be heralded by complimentary remarks by the foremost living advocate of the opposite ideal, the "Strenuous Life"—by President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have written to Pastor Wagner, after reading his book on simplicity, in high praise of its lessons.

Mr. Wagner is an Alsatian who, like so many of his countrymen, left the province for France after its conquest by the Germans. He preaches to a strong Protestant congregation in Paris. He is a man of big and bulky build and slow, strong utterance.

In describing the fever of modern life he depicts a pair of lovers awaiting their marriage day in Paris. Rushed to death by gifts coming in, by constant calls from the dressmaker, by disarrangements in the complicated plans for the great day, they cannot have a moment to themselves except by escaping to the room of the dear old grandmamma of the girl, who smiles down upon them and says: "Decidedly, my dears, the world is growing too complex and it does not make people happier—quite the contrary."

People toil and struggle and fight not for necessities but for the empty trappings of display. A man thus "enslaved to his needs may best be compared to a bear with a ring in its nose, that is led about and made to dance at will."

"I know more than one little household," writes Mr. Wagner, "which ought to be happy where the mother has only pain and heartache every day and night, the children are barefoot and there is great ado for bread. Why? Because too much money is needed by the father. To speak only of the expenditure for alcohol, everybody knows the proportions that has reached in the last 20 years. The sums swallowed up in this gulf are fabulous—twice the indemnity of the war of 1870."

Mr. Wagner takes incidentally a fall out of the "Big Stick" theory.

"We also hear on all sides," he says about militarism, "the adage that money is the sinews of war. There is no question that war costs much money, and we know something about it. Does this mean that in order to defend herself against her enemies and to honor her flag a country need only be rich? In olden times the Greeks took it upon themselves to teach the Persians the contrary, and this lesson will never cease to be repeated in history.

"With money, ships, cannon, horses may be bought; but not so military genius, administrative wisdom, discipline, enthusiasm. Put millions into the hands of your recruiters and charge them to bring you a great leader and an army. You will find a hundred captains instead of one, and a thousand soldiers. But put them under fire; you will have enough of your hirelings."

And as to money worship:

"At least one might imagine that with money alone it is possible to lighten misery. Ah! that too is an illusion from which we must turn away. Money, be the sum great or small, is a seed that germinates into abuses. Unless there goes with it intelligence, kindness, much knowledge of men, it will do nothing but harm, and we run great risk in corrupting both those who receive our bounty and those charged with its distribution.

"When gold, which should be a servant, becomes a tyrannical power, affronting morality, dignity and liberty; when some exert themselves to obtain it at any price, offering for sale what is not merchandise, and others, possessing wealth, fancy that they can purchase what no one may buy, it is time to rise against this gross and criminal superstition and cry aloud to the imposture: 'Thy money perish with thee.' Almost all the most precious things that man possesses he has received gratuitously; let him learn so to give them."

MINSTREL'S WIFE LOVED HOME AS LIFE

Mrs. George Thatcher Committed Suicide When It Came to Joining Husband on Travels.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Although about to receive a legacy of $100,000, worry over a trivial matter so preyed upon the mind of Mrs. Mary T. Thatcher, wife of George Thatcher, the minstrel, that she forgot the joy which she had expected over her good fortune and committed suicide last night in her apartment, at 1 West One Hundred and Sixth street, by inhaling gas.

Mr. Thatcher had implored his wife to give up her home in New York and accompany him on his western tour with the comedy, "The County Chairman." Mrs. Thatcher was attached to her beautiful apartment, where she lived with her daughter, Mary L. Thatcher.

When her husband's letters continued to appeal to her she acquiesced, but the work of packing the furniture for removal made her melancholy. She told her daughter last week that if anything happened to her it would be well to take from a dresser the key to a safe deposit vault and $10, which she had on hand for emergencies. Mrs. Thatcher was apparently in better spirits yesterday, and Miss Thatcher, accompanied by her fiance, J. H. Parker of Somerville, N. J., a distant relative of Judge Alton B. Parker, left the house for a day at the seashore. They returned at 8:30 p. m. to find her mother dead on the bed in the daughter's room.

Mrs. Thatcher had stuffed the keyholes with handkerchiefs and placed bed covers over the window. Then disrobing, she turne on two gas jets. She had been dead several hours.

The key to the safe deposit box and the $10 emergency fund were found as Mrs. Thatcher had directed. It is believed that her mind was temporarily unbalanced by the thought of leaving her home.

Mrs. Thatcher inherited $100,000 on the death of her uncle, Patrick Mealy of Steelton, Pa., a few weeks ago. Mr. Thatcher will arrive in Kansas City today in response to a notice of his wife's death. Miss Thatcher was to have entered a private school after her mother's departure.

Our Cities as Separate States.

Few Americans will be ready to believe that there is any possibility that our great cities may be divorced from our states, making them separate commonwealths in our union, yet the suggestion made by Mr. Samuel E. Moffett in Collier's for Sept 17 shows logical reasons for such a move. He says:

"There is hardly a doubt that every city of over a quarter of a million inhabitants would be better governed as an independent community than as an uncongenial member of a party rural partnership. It could make its laws to suit its own conditions then, without having to go into 'deals' with country politicians unrestrained by its public opinion, and it could get better men to serve it when its mayor and aldermen were at the same time governors and members of the legislature. The city-states of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco may write some chapters of history worth putting beside those written by the city-states of Athens, Florence, Venice and Rome."

ROSE FROM MESSENGER TO HIGH POSITION.

Jones C. Langley.

Jones C. Langley, a telegraph operator, has just received his third promotion in three years at the hands of the Western Union Telegraph Co. Mr. Langley was promoted from the position of assistant chief operator in Dallas, Tex., three years ago to the claim department in St. Louis. He was then advanced to the positions of cashier and chief clerk, respectively.

His last and new position is that of assistant superintendent. The rise of Mr. Langley with the Western Union has ben gradual and has come as a result of hard work. He entered the service of that company in 1885 as manager at Paris, Tex. He is 37 years old and was married a few weeks ago to Miss Hulda Gehrke of Chicago.

Mr. Langley started on his career as messenger boy in a Western Union office in Falmouth, Ky., in 1880. There he learned the click of the keys that brought him his present position.

IN SOCIETY

The imperial German commissioner-general, Dr. Theodor Lewald, has issued invitations for a reception to be given at Das Deutsch Haus Wednesday, Sept. 21, from 8:30 until 11 o'clock. The reception is given to meet the members of the International Congress of Arts and Sciences.

Mrs. A. D. Hartwell of 6013 Clemens avenue gave a dance Thursday night in honor of Miss Fairy Burne of Sidney, Australia. Among those present were: Misses Bessie and Adelia Chandler of Berlin, N. Y.; Mazie Johnson of Troy, N. Y.; Rider of Troy, N. Y.; Maud Rousch of Columbus, O.; Bulah Gray of Dallas, Tex.; Louise Stewart of Dallas, Tex.; Mary and Margaret Urling of Pittsburg, Pa.; Sadie Liebke, Mary Ruth Hartwell; Mmes. M. W. Dodfrey of Dallas, Tex.; Ed Gray of Dallas, Tex.; Ethel Godfrey of Columbus, O.; Mabel Porter of Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Price of Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Price, Mr. and Mrs. George Neal of Pittsburg Pa.; Dr. H. W. Hartwill, Dr. Lecron, Dr. Otto Furth, Dr. Davis of New Zealand, Messrs. Price, Flisinger, Burnside and Arthur Cowan of New York.

A surprise party was given in honor of Miss Estelle Wood Saturday evening at her home on Sappington road, Kirkwood, Mo. The evening was spent in dancing and games. Those present were as follows: Misses Estelle Wood, Irene Hoefner, Jennie Robinson, Helen Brady, Nonie Young, Ella Young, Mae Gifford, Frances Wood, Hazel Wood, Ada Gifford, Mmes. F. H. Wood, R. E. McGilaway, O. Pabst, W. S. Gifford, Zoe Lindas, Messrs. Edward Moore, Thomas Brady, Walter Nelson, Fred Jenks, John Moore, Frank Fisher, Frank Wood, Jr., Ben Lindas, Grover Wood, Walter Wood, Walter Gifford, Pabst, McGillaway, Frank Wood, Walton, Emerson.

Mrs. Margaret R. Andrews and Miss Virginia Andrews, formerly of Washington, after spending three weeks with friends at 5094 Minerva avenue, attending the World's Fair, will leave on Wednesday for Lindenwood College, St. Charles.

Mr. John Stevener has returned home, after spending several months in Europe.

Miss Minnie Palmer of Buffalo, N. Y., is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. C. Broderick of Fairmount avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holborn of 2820 Washington avenue are entertaining their father, Mr. Henry Holborn, Sr., from Clonmel, Ireland; also their uncle, Mr. Arthur Holborn of Bristol, England, and their three sisters, Mmes. James A. Thompson, J. S. Green and Dr. Thomas Flavin, all of Houston, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith and Mr. Smith's sister, Miss Vinnie Slawson of Osage, Io., returned to their home after a pleasant visit with their brother, Mr. J. T. Slawson of North Thirteenth street.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Newman of Lafayette avenue give a card party and dance in honor of the Misses Alice McAvoy and Elizabeth Sampson of Jacksonville, Ill.

Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Brown and daughter, Miss Fairy Burne, of Sidney, Australia, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Hartwell of 6015 Clemens avenue, left Saturday for San Francisco, Cal., where they will remain until the 29th and then sail for their home in Australia.

Mrs. Ethel Rousch-Godfrey and her sister, Miss Maud Ronsch, of Columbus, O., are visiting Mrs. A. D. Hartwell.

Miss Georgia B. Riley and Mr. R. L. Kuhn of Wright City, Mo., were married by Rev. Father Tuohy of St. Teresa's Church at 2:30 Thursday. Miss L. A. O'Shea was maid of honor and Mr. J. W. Riley served as groomsman.

Miss Grace B. Murray of Maryland avenue has departed for Galveston, Tex., to visit friends.

Miss Stella Wade left for New York last Saturday with her father, Mr. Festus J. Wade. She will remain East two or three weeks.

Mrs. A. H. Howard of Palestine, Tex., is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. E. J. Neville at their home on Morgan street.

Mrs. Howard will be one of the assisting hostesses at the Texas building this week.

Priest Stricken at Altar.

SOMERSET, O., Sept. 19.—Rev. Albert Reinhart, aged 38, pastor of Holy Trinity Church at Somerset, and editor of The Rosary, a church magazine, published by the Dominican order, was stricken with paralysis just as he had finished mass and was still at the altar. He is in a critical condition. Prior to entering the priesthood, Rev. Mr. Reinhart was a practicing attorney at Cincinnati.

Murder Over 21 Cents.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 19.—Warren Baldwin, a conductor on the Iron Mountain Railway, was shot and killed by O. J. Allison, a section foreman, as his train was pulling into McGhee, Ark. The shooting followed a dispute over the payment of a fare of 21 cents. Allison jumped from the train, but surrendered himself to a deputy sheriff and was taken to Arkansas City.

"The Tenderfoot" Fills the Century; Williams and Walker at the Grand

Mr. Richard Carle will go down in dramatic history as a most generous author-star. His generosity is of the peculiar—the rather over-human—kind, which leads him to share with other people honors which it is in his power to segregate to himself.

Mr. Carle is the author of the musical comedy "The Tenderfoot," which came back to the Century Theater Sunday night. He is also the star in the production. It was altogether possible for him, as author, to put all the "fat" lines and humorous, applause-bringing situations in the part of Prof. Zachary Pettibone—which is Mr. Carle's part. But he did not do it. He distributed them almost equally among the professor and half a dozen other male parts, to say nothing of giving to several of the women a liberal number of good things which the professor might as well have had for himself. In all of which does proof of Mr. Carle's over-human generosity burst forth.

The result is that Mr. Carle's "Tenderfoot" production is a remarkably even one. The fun of it does not depend upon the star's personal presence upon the stage; there are about a dozen satellites that are given a chance to twinkle with as great brilliance as the chief firmamental orb. And therefore "The Tenderfoot" is not dull for a minute.

"The Tenderfoot" lacks a lot of being new in St. Louis or to St. Louis playgoers. It has been here before, and unless the present prophet is totally without virtue as a prophet, it will be here again. Mr. Carle is the best thing in the play—not because the program says so, but by virtue of his ability as a comedian. His voice Sunday night was in great need of the attention of a manicurist, or at least a massense, but his eloquent feet, legs and hands and his cherubic face were no whit back of the requirements. The best way in which to get a list of the other good people is to carefully copy the cast of characters, from Col. Paul Winthrop to Rupert, and then bunch the chorus as a sort of art supplement. Mr. Stanley is as far above the average comic opera tenor, both as singer and actor, as the Missouri Trust Observatory is above Uhrig's Cave as a point for comprehensive observation of surrounding scenery. He has a voice which, in volume, is great enough to rattle the rafters of the Coliseum, and, in clarity, is equal to all requirements. Miss Frances Knight has the chief female part, Marion Worthington, and it is a close fit for cleverness between her and Miss Minerva Courtney, an ingenuous creature with the eyes and manner of the Angel Child, who plays Patsy and dances rings around most soubrettes. William Rock as the solemn celestial, uses agile legs and a blue-mud complexion to side-splitting advantage. And there is a chorus girl—her name is hidden somewehere in the list of seminary girls—who has a jolly laugh which should make fame and fortune for her sometime.

"The Tenderfoot" will be here one week. When the show management and house management got together Sunday night and counted the receipts they exchanged regrets that the engagement was not for a longer period. For "The Tenderfoot" draws well. The Savage production of George Ade's "Sultan of Sulu" comes next week.

Williams and Walker, presenting "In Dahomey," came in at the Grand yesterday for a three weeks' engagement. They played to an audience of immense proportions, the house being sold out at 6 p. m. The size of the house, the popularity of Bert Williams and George Walker, a popularity which was shared in by Miss Lottie Williams and Miss Ada Walker, who in private life also divide the spoils of war with the comedians, and the wealth of entertainment in the musical comedy, created a regular hip-hip hurrah time of it for three hours. Every second person was whistling, laughing or applauding from wire to wire.

There is, and always has been, very little in the production save the ex-vaudevillians, but they scatter themselves through its three acts in very generous lumps. The chorus sings well and the costumes are wonderful eye exercises.

In spite of the rain, two large audiences saw "Louisiana" at Music Hall yesterday, and the big extravaganza is fortunate that it moved downtown so early. Last night's audience was one of the largest of the season, even larger than some already recorded. There was a goodly number of World's Fair officials and foreign visitors in the boxes and scattered through the big audience. In fact, the first Sunday of "Louisiana" in Music Hall was most satisfactory. It goes much better indoors, and the music and colorful ballets, especially the Indian ballet, were received with great applause.

It was wild man's night last night at the Odeon. All kinds of wild men, from Apache braves to African pygmies and Patagonian giants, were present. Geronimo, the noted warrior, accompanied by his Apache braves, was as large as life in a box. All the Indians, good, bad and indifferent, grunted their approbation of Kiralfy's Louisiana Purchase Spectacle. The Odeon was crowded.

"Under Two Flags" succeeded Haverly's minstrels at the Crawford Theater yesterday afternoon. The dramatization of the Ouida story was at the Crawford last season, and proved very pleasing to the patrons of the house. Hence it is so soon returned. Eva Lang is seen in the part of Cigarette, the role in which Blanche Bates first attracted attention. Miss Lang is a very capable actress, and she has some very clever supports in Lulu McConnell and others.

AN INSIDE INN FOR PORTLAND.

St. Louis Parties Will Have First Chance at Enterprise.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 19.—The Lewis and Clark Exposition is to have an "Inside Inn," similar to the one in operation at present at the St. Louis World's Fair.

Representatives of the St. Louis Inn will arrive here this week to look over the situation. Should they decide to avail themselves of it the opportunity will be given them to erect a like structure in this city. In case they take an unfavorable view of the matter a local company will immediately commence the erection of an inn of between 2500 and 3000 rooms.

HA! THIS TRUST IS SOMETHING FIERCE!

Press Agents Have Organized and World Will Have to Come to Their Terms.

A press agents' trust!

Behold another accomplishment of the spirit of civilization. The downtrodden purveyors of publicity have organized the International Amusement Agents' Association and are out for protection.

Large institutions must have small beginnings and the press agents' trust was organized with 10 charter members. Its officers predict that it will grow rapidly to embrace all of the worthy in the "profesh" throughout the world.

The small dealer, in other words, the incompetent recruit, is to be squeezed out, and the trust is to have as members only those who have demonstrated beyond peradventure their ability as publicity writers.

Newspaper men who seek places as press agents after failing in their professional attempts, are to be the objects of discrimination. "Down with the small fry" is the cry of the press agents' trust.

This new community of interest, which had its origin on the Pike a few nights ago, has for its obvious purpose several accomplishments. Chief among these is the advancement of the weekly stipend. Never, say the press agents, have they been perturbed over any "frenzied finance" of their employers, and their first step will be in the direction of an increase.

Men interested in the new organization say it is bound to succeed, and that within one year the trust will embrace the leading lights of the business on both sides of the water.

Maj. Jack Burke, who has sung the praises of Buffalo Bill and his show until both are known the world over; Bert Hall, who in a few months has made Bostock's hippodrome in Paris famous, and others of their standing, have already voiced their sympathy with the trust and made application for membership.

Whole Pike at Delmar Track.

Charter members of the newly formed trust are:

Thomas D. McMechen, president; E. Sherman Danby of the Boer war, vice-president; Charles Phillips of Ancient Rome, treasurer; Edward Lampman of Under and Over the Sea, secretary; Joseph F. Pazen, observation wheel, general representative; Theodore Bauer, Hagenbeck's; George McFarland, exploitation bureau; Harry Caruthers, exploitation bureau; Edward Robinson, Asia; Robert Ricksen, naval exhibit.

A benefit for the press agents' trust is to be given Sunday afternoon, Oct. 2, at Delmar Racetrack. Manager Sam Adler has given the use of the track free of charge for the exhibition, and the entire Pike will be on display, for are not the press agents the Pike?

The big elephant Rajah, unruly and savage, will be electrocuted. Diavolo will loop the loop and many other feats will be performed. John L. Sullivan will be master of ceremonies. Proceeds will go into the treasurery of the press agents' trust.

The possibilities of the new trust, say the members, are unlimited. It was not Kuropatkin, they say, who said he would sign the treaty of peace in Tokio; it was his press agent. They will hold it in their power to publicize peace parliaments to speedy success, or, should the military element be sufficiently provided with funds, they could make war a permanent institution.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED IN RACE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 18.—The attempt of Louis P. Doerhoefer, a wealthy resident of Louisville, to break the world's 24-hour automobile record of 891 miles, was frustrated by an accident, which wrecked the machine and resulted in the injury of his assistant, Frank Katz, an expert automobilist. Blinded by dust, Katz steered wide at one of the turns of the Douglas Park trotting track and went through two fences at 3:30 o'clock this morning. Katz will probably recover.

At the time of the accident Mr. Doerhoefer had gone 350 miles in 10 hours and 50 minutes.

MAN SHOT WHO WOULDN'T TESTIFY

Because Unwilling to Be Police Court Witness, He Lost Tip of His Ear.

Because he would not testify in a police court case, John Rogers of 1504 Pine street is in the City Hospital with the top of his ear missing and a scalp wound where a bullet, fired, he says, by Chancellor Stillwell, plowed through.

Rogers stated to the police that Stillwell came to his room accompanied by his brother, Ed Stillwell, and without warning shot him. Ed Stillwell carried a knife, Rogers says, and after the shot was fired Rogers ran down to the street pursued by the two Stillwells.

Rogers says the cause of the shooting was his refusal to testify in Ed Stillwell's behalf two weeks ago, when Stillwell was fined $10 for disturbing the peace.

Chancellor Stillwell was arrested as he was pursuing Rogers, and was taken to the Four Courts. Ed Stillwell escaped.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 19.—An explosion of dynamite under the house of Julia White on East Race street, in which a dance was in progress, killed John Harris, a negro; fatally injured Jennie Smith and hurt Julia White so badly that she may die.

Ernst Hollins and John Thompson are in jail charged with having caused the explosion. Hollins is a rival of Harris for the hand of the Smith woman, and is said to have threatened them. Four squares around the house were shaken, windows broken and the house itself so badly torn up that it will have to be destroyed.

Pickpockets Busy on Trolley Lines These Days.

Pickpockets have been active on street cars in the past few days, and three men have reported to the police the loss of money and valuables to the extent of $600.

E. D. Chapps of Fort Worth, Tex., who is stopping at 4483 Washington boulevard, reports that he lost money and jewelry valued at $500 while riding on an Olive street car. Two pocketbooks containing $200, a diamond sword-shaped stickpin valued at $200, a pearl pin and a watch valued at $50 each are the articles reported as taken.

E. M. McNichols of Lincoln, Neb., reports that he was robbed on a Broadway car of a gold watch and a pocketbook containing $5.

O. P. Phillips, yardmaster of the Terminal railroad, states that he lost his watch while on a Spring avenue car.

POST-DISPATCH DAILY RECORD OF DOINGS IN THE MARKET AND FINANCIAL WORLD

STOCKS CLOSE QUIET AT A SLIGHT DECLINE

Active Selling of the Earlier Trading Is Not Noticeable at the Market's Close But the Last Prices Noted Show Small Losses for the Day.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—The opening on Wall street this morning was active and irregular, some stocks showing small advances while other recorded proportionate losses. Average prices, though, were slightly lower and a sagging market is looked forward to by the trading element.

Prices in the London market on American issues were also irregular and slightly lower. U. S. Steel preferred being the weakest feature at a decline of ⅜. Sentiment at that center is mixed, although consols are steady at unchanged prices.

The principal topic of discussion over Sunday has, of course, been the poor bank statement of Saturday, which forcibly illustrated the exceedingly heavy demands being made on the money market at the present time. The question naturally arises in the face of the heavy withdrawals recently noted, how far the present currency movement will extend and to what level the surplus reserves will decline before the inquiry for crop moving purposes is satisfied. This, of course, is a matter of conjecture, but with the surplus reserves still above the $29,000,000 mark, compared to reserves of $13,000,000 in the corresponding week in 1903, the demands on the local money market in the near future would have to be of extremely abnormal proportions to cause any unusual disturbance and advance in money rates. And it is not likely that credits would have been extended in stock market by the leading banking interests in the manner in which they have been in the last six weeks, if the possibilities of tight money during the coming fall were not exceedingly rmote. The opinion seems to prevail that the present heavy demands for funds and the consequent declining bank reserves is a decidedly adverse feature of the market situation. But it is not, and if looked at in the proper light it is decidedly a favorable circumstance. For, although it may cause a slightly higher range of interest rates, which bankers have been praying for—and now every one is harping on as something to be feared when it arrives, it nevertheless demonstrates that demands for other than crop-moving purposes are in the market. Demands from the business interests in the West and Southwest in anticipation of an increased activity in general business this fall. And this is certainly not an unfavorable circumstance, even if it does carry surplus reserves down rapidly and interest rates up sharply.

Opening prices and changes were as follows: Copper 58, advance ⅛; Atchison 81⅞, decline ¼; Brooklyn 55¼, decline ¼; Baltimore & Ohio 88⅞, decline ⅛; Erie 31, decline ⅛; Missouri Pacific 98, unchanged; Reading 66⅝, decline ¼; Pennsylvania 131¼, decline ¼; St. Paul 157¼, unchanged; Southern Pacific 56, advance ⅛; Union Pacific 97⅝, decline ⅛; United States Steel common 17¼, decline ½; United States Steel preferred 68¼, decline ⅜.

Selling for both the long and short account became more pronounced nearing the noon hour and prices dropped a further fraction. The market displayed no decisive weakness but a sagging tendency was apparent and traders are working on the declining side.

Amalgamated Copper was the exception to the general market tendency and advanced a full point in the early trading. No news was forthcoming to account for the strength displayed other than the still favorable reports in the copper trade in general and the heavy export demand noted for this product.

Railroad reports of earnings submitted are still exceedingly favorable, although heavy increases in operating expenses are still countenancing to a large extent the liberal increases noted in the gross receipts. Forty-two roads for the first week of September show an average gross increase of 4.44 per cent when compared to the earnings for the same period in 1903, but 92 roads for July show an average decrease in net earnings of 7.82 per cent. The statements of St. Paul and also of Northwestern for August show very heavy increases in operating expenses, largely due no doubt to the exceedingly unfavorable conditions at present prevalent in the Northwest.

The market at the noon hour was still on the down turn, and prices generally showed declines averaging about a point. Sales to noon, 339,500.

Traffic reports of the South and Southwestern railroads show that conditions in these sections are still improving and earnings in this territory are highly gratifying. Missouri Pacific reports an increase in gross earnings for the second week of September of $37,000 and on the central branch a gain of $150,000 is shown. St. Louis Southwestern's gain for the same period was $34,382 and since July 1 this company's gross has increased $267,650. Missouri, Kansas & Texas is out with a favorable statement for the fiscal year, showing a gross gain of $538,402, while Wabash for the second week in September gained $103,818 in the gross account and since July 1 has gained $618,123.

No reports of increased orders are forthcoming in the steel trade and demands for equipment and railroad supplies remain exceedingly light. The American Locomotive Co. reports no large purchases of locomotives in sight, yet in the face of this lax demand sentiment regarding the outcome of the steel trade is daily growing more optimistic.

Continued heavy buying in Amalgamated Copper caused a slight rally in the later trading and a sharp break in the grain market was also a stimulating influence. But on all rallies free offerings of stock were noticeable and this checked any advancing tendency displayed in the market. Dullness and inactivity marked the closing period and the last prices noted were slightly above the low point, but in most instances showed small losses for the day.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Opening prices of stocks today were generally lower than Saturday. Southern Pacific and Amalgamated Copper were the most prominent stocks to show gains, and they rose only ⅛. St. Paul was down ¾ and Rock Island, Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and U. S. Steel ⅝.

After an interval of selling in which St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio and U. S. Steel preferred declined a point, the market rallied sharply. U. S. Steel preferred recovered fully and Amalgamated Copper was bid up to 58⅝, or nearly a point above Saturday's closing. Before 11 o'clock simultaneous pressure against Louisville & Nashville and Pennsylvania was soon extended to other leading stocks and the market fell back to the lowest. Reading, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Chicago Terminal preferred and General Electric lost 1; Louisville & Nashville, 1⅜, and Central of New Jersey 1½. Toledo, St. Louis & Western preferred rose 1½.

The market worked irregularly lower with occasional rallies. St. Paul fell an extra 1½ and the principal trunk lines, Wabash preferred, the local tractions, Leather preferred and Tennessee Coal a point. Consolidated Gas lost 2 and Colorado Fuel 1⅜. Trading was comparatively light.

Bonds were easy at noon.

ADVANCES DID NOT HOLD IN GRAIN

Wheat and Corn Reacted One Cent, but Broke Down Late in Day.

WAS NOT ENOUGH BUYING

Bullish Conditions Failed to Secure Enough Speculative Backing.

Wheat had a reaction of a cent on comparatively well sustained markets abroad and cold, snowy weather in the British northwestern harvest fields. There were also some bullish French news, a much smaller increase in the visible than a year ago and some high prices paid here for choice wheats, which were scarce. But after shorts were run in some bulls had caught on for a further advance the market lost all its bullishness, selling broke out and became right fierce, discouraged bulls and encouraged bears offering more than there was demand to take care of. A break of 2⅞c from the top resulted and the close was 1⅛ below Saturday. Increasing spring wheat movement and 4c collapse in Minneapolis had an impressive bearish effect late in the day. Predictions for frost stirred up buying that was strong enough to rally corn 1c also, as not much was for sale. A Jones estimate for a crop of 1,900,000,000 bu had some effect, but did not produce speculative support to sustain the advance. All the gain in price was lost by close, the break in wheat having a depressing effect. Oats were dull and weak, having had another large increase of over 3,300,000 bu in the visible.

WHEAT—Not one of the foreign markets had fallen anywhere near as much as had American markets Saturday and the weather in the Northwest was not favorable for finishing harvest. These were two conditions that aroused sufficiently strong buying at the opening to rally prices, but weakened on larger receipts here and in the Northwest. December opened ⅝c higher at $1.12⅝ and sold off to $1.13¾. May opened ⅝c higher at $1.14½ and later offered at $1.13⅝@$1.13⅝. For September $1.10½ bid. Although world's shipments for past week were in excess of estimates as well as the week before and a year ago Liverpool only lost 1d at opening, this on the weakness in America, and later advanced ⅜@½d on French purchases of Australian and Pacific coast cargoes and smaller Russian offerings. London reported off only ¼d and Paris ⅜c. This decline in Paris offset bullish French news by Broomhall. Receipts at St. Louis were 213,900 bu, against 174,100 bu one year ago, and at Minneapolis and Duluth 991 cars, against 1024 last year.

Reported advance of 2c in Winnipeg on bad weather and snows in the provinces had a bullish effect. December selling up to $1.12⅞ and May to 1.14⅝, but later in forenoon relapsed to respectively $1.12¼ and $1.14⅛. September sold at $1.11⅜. Foreign markets closed at declines for day of ¼d in Liverpool, ¼d in London, 1@1¼c in Paris and ⅜c in Antwerp, and Berlin unchanged. Visible increased 895,000 bu last week, against 1,739,000 bu increase a year ago. Primary receipts for 48 hours were 1,683,000 bu, against 1,295,000 bu one year ago and shipments 549,000 bu, against 577,000 bu last year. Clearances of flour and wheat were 61,800 bu.

After the noon hour the market suffered a bad break. Minneapolis declined sharply and that affected adversely all domestic markets, starting as it did selling for both long and short account. December sold down to $1.10 and closed at $1.10⅛@1.10¼ bid, May then being offered at $1.12¼. September nominally $1.09.

Cash market—A great scarcity of choice heavy soft winter and an urgent demand therefor so that strong prices realized, but off and light weight grades slow to dull. Hard winter dull as demands limited. By sample delivered—No. 2 red east side at $1.14@1.16½; No. 3 red at $1.06 for western and $1.08@1.14 for nearby; No. 4 at 94c@$1.09 for low to choice; rejected at 90@93c; No. 3 hard at $1.04@1.08; No. 4 hard at 95c@$1.04; No. 3 mixed at $1.07@1.10.

CORN—A material drop in temperature in the Northwest accompanied by a rising barometer, indicated much colder weather with frosts that might enter the corn country if the low areas there moved out. This prospective colder weather led to stronger buying and higher prices. December opened ⅜c higher at 47⅝c and May had 47⅝c (⅜@½c advance) bid, but latter offered soon at 47¼c. Receipts continued small, 36,900 bu arriving here, against 62,100 bu one year ago. Liverpool opened ⅜d lower on weak American cables, but rallied ¼@⅜d, affected by withdrawals of La Plata parcels and an improved spot demand.

Predictions for frost tonight in the Dakotas and western Nebraska and a Jones report claiming crop raised will be only 1,900,000,000 bu, increased the buying to such an extent that December sold up to 48c and May to 48¼c. Before 12 o'clock they were back to 47c and 47⅝c respectively. Liverpool closed ⅛d lower for the day. Visible increased 951,000 bu, against 982,000 bu increase a year ago. Primary receipts for 48 hours were 712,000 bu, against 647,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 1,107,000 bu, against 921,000 bu last year. Clearances were 139,800.

When wheat broke down corn was sympathetically affected, the buying letting up and selling increasing. December sold down to 47⅛c and offered at 47c at close, when May sold at 47¼.

Cash market—Light offerings and firmer. By sample delivered—No. 2 at 52½@53c; No. 3 at 52c; No. 4 at 50½c; No. 2 white at 53c; No. 3 white at 52½c.

OATS—In December there was trading at 32½c, but May neglected this morning. Receipts were 63,450 bu, against 106,650 bu a year ago.

Later in the forenoon 32⅝c was bid for December and 34⅝c for May. Visible increased 3,347,000 bu last week, where a year ago decreasing 485,000 bu. Primary receipts for 48 hours were 1,058,000 bu, against 582,000 bu one year ago, and shipments 481,000 bu, against 210,000 bu last year. Clearances were nothing.

The large visible increase and the decline in all other grain depressed prices subsequently, December closing at 31¼c sellers and May selling at 34⅛c.

Cash market—Steady, but quiet; demand moderate and mainly local. From store No. 3 white at 32c loaded. By sample delivered—No. 2 at 32¾@33c; No. 3 at 32@32¼c and colory at 32c; No. 4 at 31c; No. 2 white at 34½c; No. 3 do at 32@33¼c and fancy 34c; No. 4 do at 30@32¼c.

RYE—Steady. No. 2 sold delivered east side at 75c for choice and ordinary worth 74c. No. 3 quotable at 71@72c.

Trade Topics.

Two countries between them shipped over half the wheat that all exporting countries set afloat last week. These were Russia and India, one of which needs money to carry on its war and the other only too willingly to secure the unusually high prices obtainable this season, besides having good prospects for its next crop. Although the total shipped last week was in excess of the amounts during quite a number of preceding weeks, the amount on ocean passage last week decreased 1,696,000 bu, indicating large imports. For same week last year the decrease was only 104,000 bu. The figures in detail follow:

Amount of corn on ocean increased last week 1,109,000 bu, against 192,000 bu increase a year ago.

Broomhall cables the cause of the recent strength in the Paris wheat market has been free speculative covering and the purchases of foreign wheat owing to confirmation of a short wheat crop. In the Liverpool market of today one of the notable influences was the purchase of Australian and Walla Walla cargoes by France.

Minneapolis wired: Our receipts all grains today large. Demand for our cash wheat, though excellent, in fact being eagerly snapped up by millers. Four cents over December is being paid for No. 1 northern spot and 3c over for it to arrive. No. 2 northern is going at December price to 1c over, and No. 3 at 2½c to 3c under December.

Last week primary wheat stocks increased 616,000 bu, where a year ago the increase was 975,000 bu; Canadian points increasing 26,000 bu, against 52,000 bu increase a year ago; ports decreasing 26,000 bu, against 308,000 bu increase a year ago; lakes and canal increased 279,000 bu, against 415,000 bu increse a year ago. LOCAL STOCKS IN LIGHT DEMAND

Trading Is Confined to a Few Issues and Price Changes Are Small.

COMMERCE DOWN, FOURTH UP

Former Drops 2 1-2 Points While the Latter Gains 2 on Small Sales.

Trading on the local stock exchange today was of exceeding light volume. Price changes were small and little if any public interest was manifested in the movements of the stocks traded in. The market at present is confined almost entirely to the brokerage element, and scalping sales constitute the balance of the present business transacted. Brokers are inclined to follow the lead set by Wall street at the present time, and as a reaction is apparent in that market today little inquiry on the buying side was noticeable in the local market.

Only small sales were recorded in the traction issues, and these at practically unchanged quotations. Transit selling in a small way at $11.75, while United Railways preferred was steady on sales at $56.25, ex-dividend 1¼ per cent.

In the bank and trust issues only two stocks were traded in, and price changes on these two were irregular. National Bank of Commerce was weak and 2½ points lower on sales at $290, while Fourth National Bank was active and on the upturn on sales between $317 and $319.

In the balance of the list the inquiry was not of sufficient strength to bring buyers and sellers together, and outside of the sale of one small Missouri-Edison bond at $100 no further transfers were recorded.

GRAIN MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—Renewed liquidation of long wheat caused a further decline of over a cent in the price of that cereal today. The market opened strong under the influence of a good commission house demand and buying by shorts. December being a shade to ⅛c higher at $1.09⅞@1.09⅝. Initial quotations on May were up ⅜@½c to ⅝@¾c at $1.11⅞ to $1.11¾. The demand at the start was due mainly to heavy rains in the Northwest and to a large decrease in the amount on passage. The advance brought out liberal offerings, much of the selling being a result of liberal world's shipments and increased receipts in the Northwest. Under the heavy selling the market quickly weakened, December declining to $1.08¼ and May to $1.10⅜. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 1047 cars, against 997 a year ago.

Later a rally occurred on an active commission house demand, inspired by reports of cold, wet weather in Manitoba. December advanced to $1.09⅝ and May to $1.12⅛@1.12¼. The strength was short lived, however, and December declined to $1.07½ and May to $1.09½. The close was weak, with December off ⅝c at $1.07¾@1.08, May closed at $1.09⅞@1.10, a net loss of 1⅛c.

Firm cables and an active shipping demand held the corn market steady in the face of the break in wheat. Favorable weather throughout the greater portion of the corn belt was the main bear factor. December opened ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher at 50⅝c to 50¾c and held firm at 50⅝c.

December advanced to 51¼c, but the gain was lost on profit-taking. The close was weak, with December at 49⅞@49⅝c, a loss of ⅝@⅞c.

Oats held steady. December opened unchanged to a shade higher at 32⅝c to 32⅝@32¾c. After selling at 32⅜c, the price settled back to 32½@32⅝c.

Higher prices for hogs caused a strong tone in provisions. January pork was up 5c to 7½c at $12.72½ to $12.75. Lard was 7½c to 10c higher at $7.12½. Ribs were up 2½@5c at $6.65.

Shipbuilding Company's Sale.

BATH, Me., Sept. 19.—Financiers interested in the United States Shipbuilding Co., including Charles M. Schwab, former head of the corporation, and James Smith, Jr., the receiver, arrived here today to attend the foreclosure sale by Receiver Smith of the Bath Iron Works and the Hyde Windlass Works, both of which were absorbed by the Shipbuilding Co., upon its organization, and have been operated by the receiver since the collapse of the company.

Sudden Death on Street.

Bryan Brady, aged 65, of 5816 Julian street died from heart failure at Hodiamont and Maple avenues Monday morning. He fell on the street, and was taken into a nearby saloon, where he died before an ambulance reached him. The body was taken to the morgue.

Death Comes Suddenly.

Mrs. Louisa M. Thomas, aged 64, of Troy, Lincoln County, Mo., who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Emeline Burlingame of 3443 Laclede avenue, died suddenly Monday it is supposed from heart disease. About 11 o'clock she complained of feeling ill. Her sister stepped from the room to procure a glass of water, and returned to find Mrs. Thomas dying. She expired before a physician arrived.

DONOVAN COMMISSION CO. ON THE MARKETS.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 19.—Wheat had its rally all right, as I predicted last Saturday, but it didn't hold, which is another story. That in brief is, there wasn't enough bullish speculation to keep that end up after they had things going their way. Bearish sentiment and speculation is on the increase, and the plungers who ran the bull campaign on the big boom don't appear to be in it. It looks to me as though they were buying for a market sold to a fare-you-well before they take hold again. The Northwest is now handing out more bear than bull dope, and that speculative section is out for a good break if they can engineer it. If the movement of spring wheat is big enough they may get it, too. There are plenty of strong conditions, but they need better speculative backing than they have at present. These conditions will assert themselves when the bears have sold too much, and they will get their work in eventually anyway. On sharp breaks would buy for reactions, but for a while would take profits on swells. There is a prospect for frosts in the corn belt, but conditions do not favor any of the killing kind and if the market should go to bulling on a frost scare would advise you to go to bearing on some sales when it looks real strong. The crop is too big for the price. So is the visible of oats. Sell them both on bulges.

Man Arrested With Booty Says Companion Controls His Actions—Two Others Confess.

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 19.—Three robbers who have stolen thousands of dollars' worth of jewelry and silverware from the residences of wealthy people in Northampton County, were captured by mere accident at Bellwood Park, N. J., by two railroad detectives. The thieves gave their names as Thomas King, Richard Mason and John Walsh of New York.

King says he is a son of a Philadelphia policeman, and will not admit, as the others have done, of having taken part in the robberies. He does not deny that he was with them, but declares that he is under a hypnotic spell exerted by Mason, and which he isu nable to throw off.

Detectives Lee and Halley boarded a Lehigh Valley coal train at Bellwood to look for tramps, and came upon the trio of thieves. In a tin box they carried was found the booty of Saturday night raids.

POSTMASTER PLACED IN JAIL.

Accounts at Saverton, Mo., Office Said to Be Short.

Postoffice Inspector Dice was notified Monday of the arrest of John F. Calvin, postmaster at Saverton, Ralls County, Mo., upon a charge of embezzlement of money order funds. The arrest was made by Inspector W. L. Reid, who, it is alleged, found a shortage of $700 in the money order department of the Saverton office when he was sent there to check up the office.

In default of $1000 bond, Calvin was placed in the Palmyra (Mo.) jail to await trial.

"BEFORE DAY" CLUB BECOMES ACTIVE

White Man Found Dead in Negress' Cabin—White Planter Warned From Country.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 19.—At Prattville, just across the Alabama river, a "Just Before Day" club, composed of negroes, has been organized. The first indication of its existence was the stopping of a white planter by a party of armed negroes. He was notified to move on and not stop again. There is considerable excitement.

The body of Willie Boyd, a young white man of Shorter's, was found under a bed in the burning house of a negress. The body was mutilated by knife and gunshot wounds.

BRAINS SANDWICH COSTS $4.05

Nebraska Man Says He Was Overcharged at Lunch Stand.

Samuel Ball of McCook, Neb., told the police Monday that he paid $4.05 for a brains sandwich to the proprietor of a lunch stand at Jefferson avenue and Olive street, Sunday night, but because he could offer no evidence to support his statement the man he accused and whose arrest he caused was released.

Ball says he ordered the sandwich after eating two other sandwiches and drinking a cup of coffee, for which he paid a quarter. Then he ordered the third sandwich, and, according to his story, tendered a $5 bill in payment. He was given $3 cents in change. An argument followed and the lunch stand proprietor was arrested. Ball could offer no evidence that he had given the man a $5 bill other than his statement it was the only money he had with him at the time.

MISSOURI MEN FIGHT NEGROES; SIX ARE KILLED

Farmer Asserted He Was Swindled in Craps Game and Summoned Friends to His Aid When Money Was Not Returned.

WINCHESTERS AND SHOTGUNS USED IN BATTLE

Foreman of the Negroes Reached Cairo Badly Wounded and Officers Leave at Once to Quell Race War That Is Feared.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAIRO, Ill., Sept. 19.—A pitched battle took place late yesterday afternoon at the levee camp near O'Brien's Landing, Mo., between the negro laborers in the camp and some white farmers of Mississippi County, in which three white men and three negroes were killed and several others seriously injured.

Chief of Police Ben Price, B. R. Thistlewood of this city, the contractor by whom the negroes were employed at the levee camp, and several officers went to O'Brien's Landing this morning, which is about 18 miles south of Cairo on the Mississippi river, and are expected to return tonight. It is feared a race war will develop after the battle.

Bob Carry, foreman of the camp, who arrived here last night, says the trouble arose over a game of cards in which a farmer was playing with the negroes. He lost considerable money and accused the negroes of swindling him. In the quarrel that ensued a negro woman broke a whisky bottle over the head of the white man.

Realizing that resistance against his enemies was useless, the farmer left the camp, and in a short while returned with nine men, all of whom were armed with Winchester rifles and shotguns.

The negroes were also well armed with shotguns and revolvers. It is claimed that the white men opened fire and the negroes returned the shots, the men shielding themselves from the bullets by dodging behind trees and the camp tents and wagons.

After the smoke of the affray had cleared away the negroes were put to rout and the white men were left in possession of the camp.

Carry's face and head are literally full of small shot, one of which passed completely through his nose. He could not give the names of those killed as he escaped from the camp at the height of the battle, and walked to Bird's Point, from which place he rowed across the river here.

The negroes at the camp were engaged in working on the levee at O'Brien's Landing for Contractor Thistlewood of Cairo.

OLD ELI'S SONS TO HEAR HADLEY

Yale's University President Expected to Address Former Students in Convention at World's Fair.

The Yale Alumni Association of the Central West held the first session of its convention Monday at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton clubhouse in the Tyrolean Alps at the World's Fair. President Hadley of Yale is expected in St. Louis to deliver the principal address to the convention.

A banquet will be given Monday night in the Town Hall of the Alps. The Alumni Association of St. Louis has 90 members and this number is swelled by alumni from every other western city who are attending the convention. Attorney F. N. Judson and David R. Francis, Jr., are members of the committee on arrangements for the meeting.

CUPID WAITS ON PAY CHECK

Girl Who Came to St. Louis to Meet Fiance in Police Matron's Care.

Miss Della Shultz, a pretty 16-year-old girl of St. Elmo, Ill., is held by the matron at the Four Courts awaiting an answer to a telegram sent by the police to her sister in St. Elmo. It will either confirm or deny the girl's story that she came to St. Louis with the consent of her sister to meet Charles Hamer, 17 years old, to whom she says she is to be married.

The girl first attracted the attention of the police Sunday at Union Station, where she was to have mte Hamer. He had expected her Saturday, and when she did not arrive that day he did not look for her the next day. She appealed to a policeman, who took her to the matron.

According to the girl's story, she met Hamer in Danville, Ill., several months ago. They became engaged, but Hamer did not have sufficient money to support her. He came to St. Louis three months ago to procure work, promising to send the girl money to keep for their wedding day.

She received only a small sum and wrote. He told her to come to St. Louis Saturday. She did not receive the letter in time to come before Sunday. The girl denies that she ran away from home and says her married sister accompained her to the train. Her parents are dead.

Hamer and Miss Schultz say they are to be married as soon as he gets a little more money.

COURT KNOCKS OUT MEXICAN BOXER

Young Attorney Who Tried to Represent His Friend Not Allowed to Enter Case.

SOUGHT SHELTER IN STORM

When Landlord Came, They Got Umbrella, but Not in Manner They Had Desired.

Although rated as the amateur champion boxer of the City of Mexico, Arturo Riopio was knocked out in the first round in the City Hall police court Monday, when he tried to act as attorney for his friend, Manuel Esmia, arrested for disturbing the peace.

Judge Tracy refused to permit an attorney to practice in his court who could not interrogate a witness in English as an interpreter.

Esmia's arrest came about through ignorance of St. Louis customs. He and two friends took refuge from one of Sunday's storms in the hallway of Lee Osborne's rooming house, 2321 Olive street, assuming that the proprietor would be glad to shelter them, as is the custom in Mexico.

When Osborne asked the three to cease bottling up his rooming house, as they filled the hall, Esmia tried to explain and asked for the loan of an umbrella. Failing to make himself understood in English, he tried Spanish, whose unfamiliar sound made Osborne think he was being vilified.

The nearest weapon was an old umbrella which he applied to Esmia's head, drove him out of the hall and finally had him arrested.

Judge Tracy deemed Esmia in the wrong since he did not leave the hallway as he was requested to do, and fined him $10. Osborne, who was arrested on a cross-charge, was discharged.

Esmia, Riopio and their witnesses, Pietro Nonegu and A. F. Monge, board at 809 North Eighteenth street. They are in St. Louis to attend the amateur boxing matches at the World's Fair.

RIVER GAMBLERS GRAB MONEY

Two Visitors Report That Their Rolls Were Taken on a Steamboat Excursion.

Two river gambling robberies were reported to the police Monday, but one of the victims said he hesitated about making any report for the reason that the gamblers were very kind to him. He was Christian Kustermann, a visitor from Germany, stopping at 4421 Lafayette avenue.

Sunday afternoon he went on an excursion on the City of Providence, and while seated upon the upper deck, was approached by a "capper" who invited him below, where he tried the wheel of fortune. He lost $130, he reported to the police, and would have lost more but that was all he had. He was later approached by a capper, he says, and was offered $50 if he would sign a statement that all his money had been returned to him. He signed the statement and received the $50.

Richard G. Williams of Schenectady, N. Y., reported that he tried a gambling game on the City of Providence Sunday afternoon and as he was not losing money fast enough one of the gamblers grabbed $30 from his hand and disappeared.

EX-PATROLMAN IN PRISONER'S ROLE

Former Member of St. Louis Force Fined on Charge of Resisting an Officer.

Pat Quanlan of 3122 North Twelfth street was fined $15 and costs by Judge Pollard of the Dayton street police court Monday on a charge of "canning" beer and resisting an officer.

Quanlan is an ex-patrolman, having been discharged from the police force during the street car strike on a charge of neglect of duty and being intoxicated.

Last Friday night a number of men were "canning" beer near Ninth and Branch streets when Patrolman Wayne Adams of the Fifth district ordered them to move away from the corner.

They resented the order and an argument followed. Patrolman Adams again ordered them to move on and Quanlan is said to have struck at the patrolman. The latter stepped back and hit Quanlan over the head with his club. The men then went to Quanlan's assistance, according to Adams' story, but Adams drew his gun and compelled them to carry Quanlan to the patrol box and wait there until the ambulance came. Quanlan was taken to the City Dispensary, where his wounds were dressed.

CHOIR BOYS FACE A STORM IN VAIN

Brave Storm to Go to Festival Hall to Find Audience of Soldiers Missing.

The time-honored bravery of the soldier has been put to shame by a choir boy in white vestments.

Unwilling to march in the rain the soldiers stayed at their camp while the choir boys went to the church to find its seats empty.

Services were to have been held Sunday afternoon in Festival Hall at the World's Fair, at which Chaplain Lee of the Second Kentucky regiment, encamped at the Exposition, had been asked to deliver the sermon.

Choir boys from Christ Church Cathedral had been requested to sing.

Shortly before time for service, while the rain was pouring down, Chaplain Lee telephoned that he could not reach the hall. The choir boys, however, undaunted by the rain, appeared at Festival Hall ready to sing during the service.

Finding the hall deserted they returned to the city.

After the rain had stopped the chaplain telephoned that he would deliver his sermon and take the regiment to the service, but the boys had gone and no religious services were held in Festival Hall Sunday.

SPANISH WAR VETERANS HERE.

The United Spanish War Veterans are holding their first national encampment at the World's Fair. Capt. William E. English is commander-in-chief of the veterans' organization. President Roosevelt sent a telegram to the convention expressing his regrets at being unable to attend. Several hundred members of the organization are there, and it is proposed to make the annual encampment of the veterans a permanent institution.

Cornell's Friend Is Dead.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Word has been received in Ithaca of the death of Prof. Daniel Williard Fiske, formerly of Ithaca, which has occurred at Frankfort-on-Main, Germany. Mrs. Jennie McGraw Fiske, the professor's wife, who died in 1881, bequeathed about $2,000,000 to Cornell for the establishment of a university library, but because the library has reached the limit of property prescribed by its charter it could not receive the bequest. Prof. Fiske gave many valuable presents to the university during the latter years of his life.

OPENING SEPTEMBER

Here's an opening for every man in St. Louis.

Here's the real genuine stuff—everything in the line of clothing for men and boys.

The characteristics of the new styles are:

Coats, longer and looser; this gives size to a man, if the coat is cut by an expert; but if by an ordinary tailor, the result is slouchiness.

The Vest opens deeper (a chance for scarfs to assert themselves).

Trousers—medium for conventional men—full for extremists.

Suits and Overcoats, ready to wear, $15 to $35.

FRANKLIN

From Ocean to Ocean in 33 Days

The little 10-horse power Franklin has made the first trans-continental trip ever attempted by an air-cooled car, and has cut the best previous record nearly in halves.

It crossed the scorching alkali deserts of the far West at its record-splitting pace in the fierce middle of August without stop, break or hitch. So much for air-cooling.

It climbed 7250 feet up over the Sierras into the Rockies from San Francisco to Ogden in exactly half the best previous time. So much for hill-climbing.

It more than halved the record from Frisco to Chicago; ran 400 miles without a stop, and arrived in New York with no worse accident for the whole trip than a parted chain and a punctured tire. So much for speed, endurance and reliability.
